State Farm Show Complex Undergoing $1.2 Million Floor Fix

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Department of Agriculture (PDA) officials said that a Tuesday reading of a testing device that monitors for asbestos in the air showed high levels in the offices of the state Farm Show Complex and resulted in workers being sent home.

Wednesday, the reading of the testing instrument showed that all was safe, according to Gene Schenck, PDA press secretary.

While the incident is still being investigated, and a number of Farm Show staff have been temporarily reassigned other duties until officials are confident that the offices are indeed safe, the asbestos scare will not affect any shows or events set to be held at the complex.

The reason for the testing device being in the offices of the Farm Show staff was because of a $1.2 million PDA project to upgrade the floor of the Main Exhibit Hall in the Farm Show Complex.

According to Schenck, air-testing devices had been placed in the offices as part of regular operating procedures involved with a current project to remove flooring tile from the 3-acre Main Exhibit Hall.

The plan is to replace the slick, old asbestos-containing tile with a new type of non-skid flooring material.

Workers have been actively removing the tiles since June, using practices to create an "asbestos abatement environment," Schenck said.

The improvement project to the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative Awards NICE Scholarships

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Atlantic Dairy Cooperative awarded scholarships to five students to attend the 1994 National Institute on Cooperative Education (NICE), July 18-21 in Washington, D.C.

The students, sons or daughters of Atlantic members, earned the scholarships by participating in the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative's 1994 Summer Institute. The program, held June 26-29 at Shippensburg University, teaches high school students about cooperative business in a fun and educational setting.

Those receiving NICE scholarships include:

Anne Fulcomer, a daughter of Ken and Aileen Fulcomer of Tyrone. Anne, 18, is a 1994 graduate of Tyrone Area High School, where she was a member of the FFA, Future Business Leaders of America and chorus. She was listed on the Honor Roll for five years. Anne plans to attend the Penn State University Altoona Campus this fall to study veterinary medicine.

At the PCC Summer Institute, Anne served as project manager

Doll Family Takes York Holstein Honors

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Dar-Dale Count Apple nearly missed the York County Holstein Show.

But the junior three-year-old, shown as an "added entry" in the 100-head annual county show, earned her keep on the last minute trip, taking senior and grand champion for the Dale and Darla Doll family of Glen Rock.

Bred and owned by Dana Doll, the Modie Valiant Count daughter was the top choice by judge Dennis Patrick of Woodbine, Maryland. Though she showed a bit less height than the older final contenders for the grand honors, judge Patrick praised her stylishness and correctness in citing her as his winner.

The champion win also helped wrap-up the Doll family's third consecutive win of the coveted premier breeder and exhibitor banners at the county Holstein show, held July 23 at the York Fairgrounds.

In the contending reserve senior and grand champion spot was Woodbine Astro Val-Twin, the winning four-year-old bred and owned by the Knight family, Airville. Tall, deep-bodied and stylish, she is sired by Bridon Astro Jet.

Junior and reserve junior champion honors both went to the show string of Coredale Farms, the Rodman Thompson family, East Berlin.

Champion heifer was the fall yearling Coredale Tital Violet, an Emerald-Acres S.A. Titan daughter bred and owned by siblings Roy Thompson and Shirley Trimmer. Runner-up was the winter yearling Gentle-Touch Chr Val Roxy, sired by Ernlo Chairman Valiant, and owned and exhibited by 4-H'er Amy Trimmer.

Nearly a dozen youngsters participated in the always-popular Kiddie Klass, featuring beginners from age 3 to 8, exhibiting young calves. The top winning pair in the crowd-pleasing contest were Kid-

Roth Recalls AI History

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.)—When you want to talk to someone who knows the history of the AI industry, you turn to Harry Roth, general manager, Atlantic Breeders. Roth is the recipient of the National Association of Animal Breeders Distinquished Service Award that will be presented in late August at the 48th NAAB annual meeting.

In an interview earlier this month, Roth said many things have changed since he started working with the AI industry in 1956. At that time there were five AI organizations in PA, and Roth credits the competition as one of the reasons improvement and progress were made.

"In those days we had to prove to ourselves and to the farmers that we could achieve better pregnancy rates than the bull could," Roth said. "That was a 15-year struggle.

"The '60's were the most critical to the industry, and we may be going through a time like it right now. The economic pressures on the dairy farmers in the '60's was tremendous. Milk prices were as serious an issue as they are now. I remember Joe Taylor, head of Penn State's dairy department, made a lot of presentations on the need to increase productivity and efficiency--so much so that many farmers began to react negatively to the message. They said, 'We are working as hard as we can now.' They didn't know how they could be more efficient. And we have the same story today with much the same reaction.

The emphasis on genetic improvement didn't happen until

National Grain Market

CORRECTION IN FOURTH PARAGRAPH DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY IT LOOKS LIKE ITS GOING TO BE -- CHEAP GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES BY CHRISTMAS. BUMPER CROP PROSPECTS. WHEAT 5 CENTS HIGHER TO 3 CENTS LOWER, WITH MINNEAPOLIS OFF 15 1/2. CORN 1-3 CENTS LOWER. SORGHUM 3-4 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 4-7 CENTS LOWER.

EXPORT ORDERS TRYING TO HOLD UP WHEAT PRICES, BUT DECLINING CORN AND SOYBEANS A DRAG. A REDUCTION IN WORLD WHEAT PRODUCTION OFFERING SOME SUPPORT.

CORN CROP IS JUST ABOUT MADE AND AWESOME. FARMERS ARE TALKING ABOUT 200 PLUS BUSHEL PER ACRE IN MANY AREAS. OUT OF RAIL SERVICE, COUNTRY ELEVATORS ARE LOOKING AT BELOW 2.00 A BUSHEL. DECEMBER FUTURES AROUND 2.20. THAT'S A LONG WAY FROM THE 1994 TARGET PRICE OF 2.75. DECEMBER OF LAST YEAR CORN WAS OVER 3.00 A BUSHEL. CARRY-OVER DOWN FROM RECENT YEARS, BUT NOT REAL TIGHT. RECENT EXPORT ORDERS HAVE BEEN PASSING CORN BY, BUT A SMALL VOLUME TODAY. YEAR TO DATE EXPORT FIGURES LOOK MISERABLE AND THE COUNTING PERIOD ENDS SEPTEMBER 1, BUT WHAT DO YOU EXPECT WITH 3.00 CORN.

A DIFFERENT STORY FOR BEANS. GOOD RECENT EXPORT ORDERS FOR SOYBEANS, OILS AND MEAL. CARRY-OVER STOCKS ARE VERY TIGHT. CURRENTLY PROCESSOR'S CASH BIDS ARE OFTEN 5-15 CENTS ABOVE ELEVATORS. THERE IS A 25 CENT AUGUST PREMIUM TO NOVEMBER ON THE BOARD. SOYBEAN CROP IS BEHIND CORN, JUST NOW PODDING. HOWEVER, MANY FIELDS ARE WASTE HIGH, FULL OF BLOOMS AND LOOKING SUPER. WHEAT BEANS ARE COMING ON LIKE GANG BUSTERS. COUNTRY ELEVATOR'S NEW CROP BIDS ARE DROPPING BELOW 5.50, WHILE DECEMBER OF LAST YEAR PRICES JUMPED UP OVER 7.00. NO GOVERNMENT TARGET PRICES FOR BEANS, THEY JUST HUNG OUT ON THE LINE IN A RAIN STORM TO DRY BY THEMSELVES.

EXPORT NEWS: THE U.S.D.A. ACCEPTED AND E.E.P. BID FOR 40,000 TONNES OF WHEAT TO THE PHILIPPINES (INCLUDING 25,000 TONNES OF HARD RED SPRING WHEAT, AND 15,000 TONNES OF WHITE WHEAT) FOR AUGUST 16 - SEPTEMBER 15 SHIPMENT.

TAIWAN PURCHASED 55,000 TONNES OF U.S. NO. 2 YELLOW CORN FOR SEPTEMBER 1-15 GULF SHIPMENT.

THE U.S.D.A. ACCEPTED A SUBSIDY BID FOR 500 TONNES OF COTTONSEED OIL TO GUATEMALA; SHIPMENT IS SCHEDULED FOR AUGUST 10 - SEPTEMBER 15.

OPINION

Producers And Processors Should Communicate

The need for an effective, fast and easily used line of communications between the agricultural producer and processor was proven beyond a doubt with respect to the beef industry, by the participation and response demonstrated during a recent forum held at Yoder's Family Restaurant in Intercourse.

The name of the forum was "Feedlot Management Forum," and was truly unlike any held in recent times. This meeting was an inside look into the motivations of the beef-animal buying industry.

, It was processors being blunt and straightforward. It was producers also being straightforward with their concerns.

The result was such information as this: In the past five years, Moyer Packing Corp. has built its export business to the point that exporting represents 20 percent of Mopac's sales. Most of that 20 percent is a specialty market to Japan. The Japanese buyers want black-blood-lined animals in the 1400-pound range.

However, that doesn't change the fact that the bulk of Moyer's business demands 1250-pound steers. That's what they want.

The meaning of this information, straight from the packer is essential to the producer-entrepreneur who must make decisions about business and weigh the risks.

The individual can use that kind of information by producing animals the markets seeks.

By knowing the market demand, following reported industry trends, and making production decisions based on good sense, there's a better chance that a producer will significantly reduce the risk of losing money because of receiving a discounted price on an animal that isn't quite right for demand.

Openess of communications between producers and processors ought to be more common in every agricultural industry.

For Ag Progress Days

Penn State's Ag Progress Days will be held August 16-18 at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rock Springs (near State College).

This year's event will showcase more than 300 exhibitors and includes research and conservation educational programs.

Special displays on food safety will be featured in the College's Exhibits Building. Demonstrations there will show how bacteria grow on meat, how safe food handling can help avoid food borne illness, how irradiation kills bacteria and how integrated pest management helps reduce pesticide residues on food.

Planned demonstrations include 35 horsepower tractor roll over and safety, composting, high residue cultivation for row crops, hay mowing, baling and large bale handling, and intensive grazing for sheep.

Admission and parking are free. The hours are from 9 a.m. — 5 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday, and 9 a.m. — 8 p.m., on Wednesday.

For more information, contact your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office or look for articles and ads in the Lancaster Farming.

To Select The Right Ram

Jeff Bollinger, Lancaster County extension livestock summer assistant, states many points need to be considered when choosing a ram for your purebred or commercial sheep flock. Some points you should consider include:

1. Select a ram from a flock free of diseases.
2. Choose a ram which is a twin or triplet. This should increase your number of multiple births.
3. Select a quick growing, structurally correct ram.
4. If possible, examine the ram's dam and sire to assure you that the ram has the quality you are looking for.
5. Select a ram containing two properly developed testicles in the scrotum. and
6. When you have chosen your ram. Isolate him for 30 days away from the rest of the flock.

To Study Financial Management

Dr. David Kohl, Virginia Tech, shared some very interesting financial management guidelines at the recent Penn State Animal Housing Expo.

Some of these included:

1. Family living cost should be under 15 percent of revenue if you have no non-farm income.
2. He identified three levels of family living cost. Frugal: $12,000 to 18,000 annually. Moderate: 18,000 to 30,000 annually. and Heavy 50,000 annually.
3. Need $150,000 sales per partner on a traditional farm or $40,000 to 70,000 sales per partner for contract production.
4. Need to keep interest expense under 20 per cent of revenue.
5. Keep annual debt payments under 25 per cent of revenue.
6. Build equity outside the farm. This would include bank CDs, mutual funds, stocks, etc. and
7. Make sure you have a good health and disability insurance program. Disability insurance is very important based on number of farm accidents in a year. These are some excellent guidelines to measure your operation against.

Editor:

The alarm clock is ringing in Pennsylvania but alas our legislators continue to sleep! What will it take to wake our public servants to the fact that local property and nuisance taxes are bankrupting those on low and fixed incomes while strangling a sluggish economy? Perhaps, we could awaken them with the right plan!

So, what would be included in the right plan? It seems to me that the right plan would include taxation based on an individual's ability to pay to ensure that our elderly keep their homes. The right plan would develop the largest possible tax base in order to keep tax rates at the lowest possible level. The right plan would keep the tax rate flat to encourage all to earn and invest to the maximum.

The right plan would reward, not penalize citizens for maintaining and improving their property. The right plan would generate massive tax savings that would stimulate the economy and create thousands of new jobs in Pennsylvania. The right plan would take the politics out of determining the tax rate and require a voter referendum to raise the rate.

The right plan would stabilize school and government finances by linking local budget growth to growth in the taxpayer's ability to pay and by requiring a savings fund to forward fund large projects. The right plan would compel the State to fund projects it mandates to local government. The right plan would do all these things and more.

Do you wish the right plan had been developed? It has! The right plan is the Weicksel Plan. You may contact me at 717-786-3291 or at P.O. Box 145, Peach Bottom, PA 17563 for a copy and information on how you can help get it implemented.

WHO NEEDS THE TENT?
July 31, 1994

Background Scripture:
Exodus 25:1-9, 29:38-46; 40:16-38
Devotional Reading:
Exodus 33: 12-36

Up until this point in the Book of Exodus, God is represented as dwelling in divine isolation on the top of Mount Sinai. But God offers them a covenant in which they will be His people and He will be their God. He also promises to bring them into the land of Canaan, which they will possess as their heritage. So, if He is to be their God and they are to go on into Canaan, then He must leave the solitary peaks of Sinai and go with them.

Presumably, God could have told them to go on to Canaan and "know that I go with you." That would be the kind of advice we might expect today. For the God revealed in Jesus Christ was and is not limited to a mountaintop, a temple or any other holy place, including a church. Who was it defined God as "a circle whose center is everywhere and circumference is nowhere"? But in Moses' day the people were not spiritually ready for that kind of God and so He had to present Himself to them in terms they could understand and believe. That, I believe, is why He said to Moses: "And make me a sanctuary, that I may dwell in their midst" (25:8).

SOMETHING VISIBLE

I do not believe that God needed a tent in order to go with the people of Israel, but that He knew they needed a tent to be aware of His presence. All the specific instructions — as to the financing of the tabernacle (25:1-9), as to the offerings (29:38-42), as to the construction and furnishing of it (40:16-33) — do not represent what it takes to please God, but what it took to reach the hearts and minds of the Israelites. I. don't think God needed that tent, but they did. They needed something visible to maintain their belief in God's promise: "and I will dwell among the people of Israel, and be their God" (29:45).

Another visible symbol of God's presence with them was "the cloud" that covered the tent of meeting. "Throughout all their journeys, whenever the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the people of Israel would go onward; but if the cloud was not taken up, then they did not go onward until the day that it was taken up" (40:36, 37). Now, I don't think God needed that cloud, but they did. Without it, I'm sure that they would have "broken loose" once again.

The writer of Exodus ends both chapter 40 and the book with these words: "For throughout all their journeys the cloud of the Lord was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was in it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel" (40:38). They needed something "in their sight" to assure them that God was with them. From our contemporary perspective, the tabernacle and the cloud seem rather primitive means of signifying God's presence. But many of us also lean sometimes upon symbols and visual representations — our churches, shrines, religious art, rituals and liturgy.

The purest and highest understanding of God is the one which we get without signs and symbols, but that doesn't mean we should or can get along completely without them. The problem is not with the tents or whatever represents God to us and makes Him real, but when we let those representations become the sole basis for our understanding. The people of Israel got very bogged down in the details of the tabernacle, just as sometimes we get equally hooked on the physical appointments of our places of worship.

Who needs the tent? Not God, but sometimes we do, so that we may remember that God is daily in our midst. Yet we must never mistake the tent in our backyard for the length and breadth of God's domain.

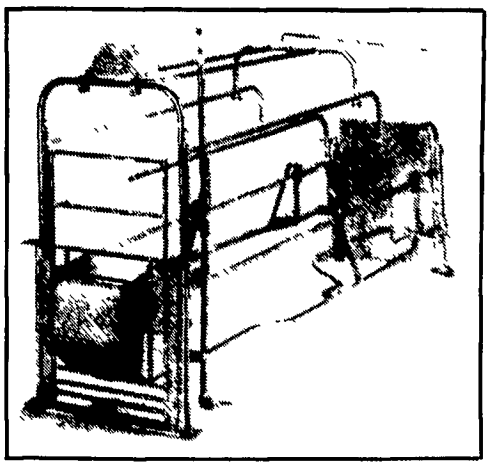
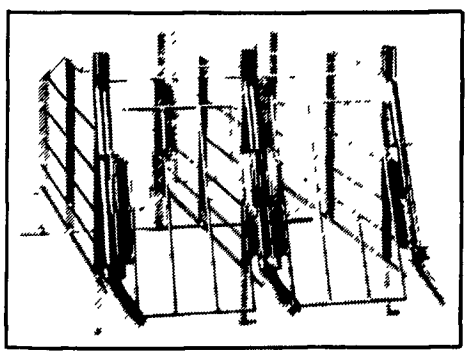
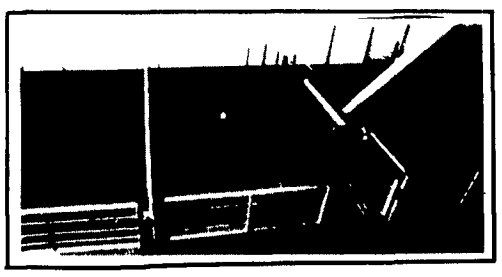
PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"
Developed through testing in our research farms the goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay ons, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity fil-prail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.

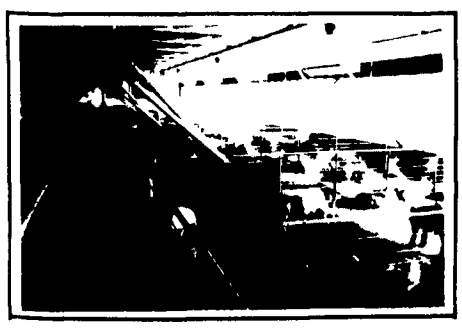




CONFINEMENT STALL
Developed recently in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x 86")

NURSERY PENNING
Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel verticals on penning eliminates corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.





FINISHING PENNING
Optional stainless steel verticals and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

Cameo Repeat Champion At Lancaster Show

Tom McCauley shows New Direction Jet Cameo. Cameo was grand champion of the Lancaster County Holstein Show both last year and again this year on Thursday.

Heather Brubaker showed Hilltop-Heritage Sassy to the junior championship.

Joseph Best shows Warns Mark Carolyn. Carolyn was grand champion of both the Lancaster 4-H Holstein Show and the junior division of the Lancaster Holstein Open Show this week.

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — For the Alan McCauley family and their New Direction Holsteins, the Lancaster County Holstein Show was a success. They had the grand champion, reserve grand champion, and numerous first-place wins to help them capture both premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners.

For the grand champion, Judge David Castrogiovanni from Montrose in Susquehanna County, picked the tall, dark, beautiful New Direction Jet Cameo to repeat last year's win. Cameo showed as a five year-old, and ringside observers called her "every bit as good as last year."

Reserve champion was New Direction Star Bobo-ET top of the senior three year-old class.

Warns Mark Carolyn was the grand champion of the junior division for Joseph Best. Carolyn was also the grand champion of the Lancaster 4-H Holstein Show a day earlier. Reserve champion of the junior division was Myerose Caveman Katherine-Red for Jason Wivell.

Hilltop-Heritage Sassy was the junior champion of the show for Heather Brubaker. Sassy topped the winter calf class. Reserve junior champion was shown by Star Rock Farms. Wyeview Raider Courtney topped the fall calf class.

Judge Castrogiovanni called his class of winners representative of the true type Holstein. The quality was good, but the numbers were down, officials said, because of the BVD scare and hot weather.

The top placings are as follows:

Spring Calf, 1. New Directions; 2. Brent Housekeeper; 3. Kristopher Martin.

Jason Wivell had the reserve grand champion of the junior division of the Lancaster County Holstein Show.

Winter Calf, 1. Heather Brubaker; 2. Crystal Brubaker; 3. Marsha Balmer.

Junior 3-Year, 1. New Direction; 2. New Direction.

Senior 3-Year, 1. New Direction; 2. Jason Wivell; 3. Sheri Bollinger.

Lancaster Holds 4-H Dairy Show

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Although the number of entries was down at the Lancaster County 4-H dairy show held Wednesday at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville, the quality of animals shown was strong, according to judge Curtis Day, of Shippensburg.

The low number of animals, due to precautions of bovine virus diarrhea, caused the colored breeds shows to be handled as one show, instead of the usual individual breed shows.

The senior and grand champion Holstein was shown by Joe Best, of Holtwood, who showed his 4-year-old Warns Mark Carolyn for the first place win.

The reserve grand champion was a senior 3-year-old, Myerose Cavemena Katherine Red, shown by Jason Wivell, of Elizabethtown.

Milk Marketing Inc. Buys Pennsylvania Cheese Company

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), the region's largest dairy producer-owned cooperative based in Strongsville, Ohio, has completed the purchase of Savoldi Cheese Company, Inc. of West Middlesex, Pennsylvania.

"We are pleased to welcome the Savoldi operation into MMI's manufacturing subsidiary, Farmers Dairy Foods, Inc. (FDF)," says Don Schriver, MMI executive vice president and chief executive officer. Effective Monday, July 18, Savoldi Cheese became a part of the MMI-FDF family.

The Savoldi plant — which produces shredded cheese products for the food service industry — will operate under the umbrella of MMI's Farmers Cheese plant in New Wilmington, Pennsylvania. As a member of MMI's FDF manufacturing arm, Farmers Cheese is one of the nation's largest single-source manufacturers of Italian cheeses.

"This is a good opportunity for MMI's dairy producer members and their customers," says Schriver. "Over the years, Savoldi has been a major user of our Farmers Cheese products. This purchase brings niche market potential to MMI by introducing more value-added capabilities and products to our business. The addition of Savoldi gives Farmers Cheese and MMI members greatly expanded opportunities for meeting the needs of our present and future customers and that helps to assure MMI's dairy farm families of market security."

MMI is a 5,700 member dairy farmer owned cooperative encompassing an eight state Midwestern area including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New York and West Virginia. MMI markets and processes more than 4.6 billion pounds or 533 million gallons of milk and has revenues of $730 million.

KIMBERTON (Chester Co.) — Veteran Jersey cow breeder and exhibitor Mildred Seeds, owner of Top-O-Hill Farm, showed the grand champion Jersey in a 55-animal show held Thursday night at the Kimberton Community Fair, in Kimberton.

Seeds, of Downingtown, and her youth showed a number of the champions of the evening.

Mildred's grand champion was a junior 2-year-old that judge Warren Buckman, of Perkasie, in Bucks County, said he really admired, even though she wasn't as mature as some of the other animals.

At the Kimberton fair, there are no reserve champions named, but if there would have been, Seeds probably would have had more awards. The Jersey show at Kimberton is one of the largest community Jersey shows in southeastern and southcentral Pennsylvania.

Her grand champion Top-O-Hill Admiral Precious, was but one of several Admiral daugthers that Seeds had at the fair that stood out and earned her a second place in the junior get-of-sire behind Paul Plummer's Juno daughters. Seeds was first place in the senior-get-f sire, and a first in the best three females.

And Seeds's junior champion was a home-bred Imperial daughter.

Tarik Gaffney, also of Top-O-Hill Farm, showed and won the 4-H grand championship with a senior 2-year-old, Top-O-Hill Junos Taco.

The 4-H junior champion was an intermediate yearling, Junos Beacon Advancer Sara, shown by Paul Plummer.

Mildred Seeds holds the halter of her open class grand champion Jersey at the breed show at Kimberton Community Fair. She also showed the junior champion.

EPA Announces Keystone Allotments From Clean Water Funds

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Pennsylvania's State Conservation Commission has received more than $2 million in federal funds to support a variety of nonpoint source pollution abatement projects in the state, including funding for 10 conservation district level positions to help develop nutrient management.

The announcement was made last week and details were provided during a conference call based at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Region III headquarters in Philadelphia.

The teleconference was arranged by Carolyn Szumal, a spokesperson with the EPA Region III Office of External Affairs. She had a staff of several EPA researchers and administrators on line to field questions.

According to the announcement, there were 17 projects targeted to receive matching federal funds. The funds are authorized by Section 319 of the the Clean Water Act and total a grant of $2,087,360.

According to the EPA officials, the funds were requested and are to be administered at the state level through Michael Krempasky, secretary to the State Conservation Commission, and chief of the DER Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation, which oversees a Division of Storm Water Management and Sediment Control, and a Division of Nonpoint Source Management which oversees the Chesapeake Bay Program and regional offices for nutrient management specialists.

Krempasky, who was not part of the teleconference, also serves as moderator and support to the Nutrient Management Advisory Board, which is to review and comment on proposed regulations by the State Conservation Commission.

The federal funds available through the Clean Water Act, were awarded as matching funds based on state and local contributions totaling $1,391,573. The total then available for the 17 projects is $3,478,933 for the 1994 fiscal year.

The funds are targeted to be used in two ways. Some of it is directed to go toward "base" funding and the remainder for "competitive" funding.

The "base" for Pennsylvania was calculated to be $1.1 million. The base money is to be used to institutionalize the programs, provide staff and longer term stability. The "competitive" funding is to be then directed to specific projects based on the submission of project proposals.

Of the $80 million awarded by the EPA nationally, Pennsylvania is among the top five states, according to amount received.

For 1994, about 66 projects were submitted in Region III, 42 programs were funded, of which Pennsylvania had the most approved.

The criteria used to determine worthy projects depends on several things, in addition to environmental need. According to the EPA officials, a critical requirement is the ability of the project to be measured for success, in addition to the specific watershed, which the states are expected to prioritize to maximize the effectiveness of the funding, and the amount of integrated agency support for the project.

The measurability of the project is a criteria requested so that officials can show Congress that the funds they have allocated are being used effectively.

For Pennsylvania, 17 projects were approved. The combined federal, state and local funding amounts are reported.

Conservation District Mining Program

A project that involves 23 county conservation districts in western Pennsylvania, the Conservation District Mining Program has been awarded a total of $301,560 for 1994 and is designed to receive funds for a minimum of three years at a rate of at least $300,000 each year.

The project is designed to complete acid mine drainage remediation work started by conservation districts as part of DER's Comprehensive Mining Strategy. The funds are to be used to hire a regional coordinator who is to develop an education program coordinate remediation activities in the southwest portion of the state and to generate local support for the work. A possibility is the hiring of a watershed coordinator who would be in charge of seeing through projects in a specific region.

Conservation District Agriculture Program

A total of $315,800 for 1994 is to be used to pay for 10 nutrient management technicians who are to develop, review and revise nutrient management plans in nine priority watersheds and two addition priority counties, which would be significantly affected by the state's Nutrient Management Act. In addition, funding may also be used to devleop demonstration projects. Under the program, the 10 people would also receive education and be certified as crop advisors.

NPS Section Staffing

A total of $331,568 has been approved to hire people to work out of Harrisburg to oversee, coordinate and integrate efforts of the state's non-point source program. According to the EPA, the people include a DER section chief, grants manager, program specialist, watershed manager, water polution biologist, and a clerk/typist.

Citizen Monitoring Coordinator

A total of $53,850 has been approved to hire a person who would be responsible for coordinating the efforts of existing citizen environemental monitoring groups, and to help stimulate the development of others. The funding is for one year.

Stream School

A 10-day residential workshop on stream ecology and biomonitoring techniques is to be held at the Stroud Water Research Center, where the White Clay Creek is part of a limnological study program and the stream is classified as part of a "high priority watershed." A total of $20,400 is to be used. The program seeks to teach at least 30 people from across the state who are "community stream watch leaders." They are to learn about the mechanics of running a stream-watch program in their own community.

Educational Programs

There are three parts to this. For a grant of $8,500, a worksheet is to

Fire Puts Expansion On Hold For Brendle Farms

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — It was a typical late-afternoon June workday when Brendle Farms employees switched off the systems at the farm and began the usual end-of-day cleanup in the candling, grading, and packing department of Somerset County's biggest egg operation. Another day was over. It was time to go home.

Friday would be a repeat, with some workers helping to construct the new third barn to house an additional 180,000 white leghorn chickens.

At his Colorado mountain retreat, owner Robert Brendle was enjoying some isolated peace, knowing his experienced son, Mike, Brendle Farms landowner, would easily handle the operation in his absence. From the poultry barns, Mike's home is about a mile and a half away.

Minutes after 7 p.m., Mike's telephone started ringing. It was the second call made by a neighbor located near the barns. The first was to 9-1-1 to summon local volunteer firemen to the scene because smoke and flames were coming from the barn.

Sipesville firemen and Mike, coming from opposite directions, minutes later, arrived simultaneously.

"The flames were 30 to 40 feet high when I got here," said Mike. "I knew it must have started in the back end where the fans are located."

Other volunteer fire companies arrived — 11 of them — but Sipesville Fire Chief Mark Zambanini was in charge.

The situation posed extreme risk for firefighters because of potential entrapment — poultry barns have long aisles and high tiers of chicken cages around which the unfamiliar firemen must move in thick smoke and heavy gear.

"If the cages collapse, buckle and fall, they are trapped," said Brendle. "It's awful risky to go into the building."

Brendle knew at best all the firefighters could do was protect the connecting structures. The barns are conjoined for automation. But it was imperative to save the methane digester. That the barn would be lost was a certainty.

"I told him (Zambanini) I had never heard of one being saved," said Brendle.

So he was unprepared for what happened when the Class A foam took over. Still amazed, Brendle said, "By the time they threw that foam in there, it was only five minutes until they put it down. It did a spartan job. They did an impossible job."

Later, it was learned that while Class A foam smothers flames like a blanket, at $15 a gallon it is much too expensive for the majority of rural volunteer fire companies to afford in great quantities.

Mike Brendle wishes that situation was different because he can't contain his praise for the local volunteer fire departments. He wishes they had funding sources other than fund drives and fundraisers that would enable them to purchase the foam.

Although only half the barn burned, the loss was hefty, at $333,000. Thirty thousand birds perished as a result. And now, it's as if they weren't expanding because the Brendle-raised pullets entering the new barn can merely keep egg production where it was before the fire.

Brendle said it will take another year, but they will continue working to rebuild and expand the operation which serves four surrounding counties with fresh eggs — Cambria, Bedford, Somerset, and Westmoreland.

"It takes a year to start a pole building," said Brendle, "until you install the wiring and insulation put on the aluminum skin and chipboard inside."

Brendle said the fire was traced to the newest of the 17 fans working full tilt to ventilate the now partially-destroyed barn. He said that despite the loss, eggs continued to be produced and shipped to market the next day.

"We didn't miss one day of production," he said. "We picked them out by hand Friday, Saturday, and Sunday."

Brendle said he's responsible for the Brendle crops. "Dad owns the birds and I take care of the fields," he said. "We're blessed that my father is here and that we can work together."

Although Brendle raises 20 percent of the poultry feed on the 550-acre spread, trucking the rest from Ohio has proven the most economical option, he said.

Robert Brendle wasn't always a poultryman. In fact, he was a dairyman, milking some 90 head of the big Holsteins. After his wife took a nasty kick from one of the cows, Robert decided dairying was not for him. It was "for the birds (pun intended).

"This is more like an eight to five job," Robert said. He said that as soon as he learned about the fire, he had to return to Somerset County. No matter how beautiful and relaxing Colorado had been, the loss to his business wiped out his pleasure in being there, he said.

Robert's wife is Betty.

Mike and his wife, Harriet, have four children ranging in age from 13 to one year. He is the governor's appointed poultry representative on the Agricultural Advisory Board to the state Department of Environmental Resources, and also president of the local water company.

Brendle Farms employs seven full time and seven part time, including dad and son, according to Mike.

A fire on June 16 was stopped halfway in the poultry barn of Brendle Farms, Somerset, when volunteer firemen threw Class A foam on it. Here is the outside of the barn showing damage at the far end.

Robert Brendle, left, and his son, Mike Brendle, stand at the entry of a new poultry barn that's under construction. It was intended to expand the egg operation, the largest in Somerset County, until a recent fire destroyed half of another barn, causing death for some 30,000 birds.

Mike Brendle stands beside a hold that firemen cut in a poultry barn when fire broke out in June. Brendle Farms lost above 30,000 chickens to fire and smothering in the $333,000 loss.

Lebanon Dairy Refunds Total $149,000

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Lebanon County Dairy producers who reduced or did not increase their 1993 milk marketings filed 96 applications and received refunds totaling $148,998 according to Jenifer Minnich, county executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The cash payments were issued to dairy producers in the county under the Dairy Refund Payment Program (DRPP), authorized by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Acts of 1990 and 1993.

"Producers who provided evidence that they did not market more milk in 1993 than in 1992 were eligible to receive the entire amount deducted from their milk proceeds if they met the eligibility requirements and claimed the refund by March 15," Minnich said.

The 1990 Act provides that the 11.25 cents per hundredweight milk marketing assessment will be increased on May-December milk marketings each year to compensate for refunds made for the previous year.

Therefore, effective May 1, 1994, the assessment was increased by 8.03 cents for a total of 19.28 cents per hundredweight. ASCS official Minnich said this rate will remain in effect throughout the remainder of this year, and will revert to 11.25 cents per hundredweight on January 1, 1995.

Roth Recalls AI History

the early '70's. That's when progeny testing programs began to accelerate and take on new meaning. Bull generations began to turn over faster, and the top bulls in the genetic pool greatly increased production per cow. That's how the farmers became more efficient.

"Now we look for the next revelation to keep farmers efficient. I believe technology has something for us. But the challenge to the family farm will be an emotional thing, a crossing point. The economics is one side, but the family aspect and the way of life to raise a family and teach children moral values is the other side. That creates real trauma, and society will need to fit in. We will be affected by it.

"In the '40's when the AI industry started, we had 25 million cows producing enough to feed our nation. Now with human population greatly increased, we feed our nation with nine million cows and still have a surplus. In addition, the AI industry has down-sized. In the '50's the nation had 100 AI organizations, in the '60's we had 20, and now we have only a few, and several of them have plans to merge.

Along with progeny testing, frozen semen was the breakthrough that brought the industry into high gear. Farmers then had the opportunity to be selective on genetic input. Emphasis was placed on sire selection."

Roth was the first person in the industry with the title of sire analyst. Today with the larger number of proven bulls, the selection from the top bulls gives the dairy farmer a good chance to improve genetics regardless of which bull he uses.

Roth said that when he received word that he was to receive the distinquished service award, he was suprised.

"When I consider the patriarchs of the industry who have received the award, I ask myself if I am really in the class of all those others who did all those outstanding things," Roth said. "I have had the opportunity to do a lot of things to contribute to the AI industry. The thing I enjoy most is to help things along and bring people together to motivate unity. If I am in the limelight or not is immaterial. I would just as soon be working along with the group and see things happen. I'm not looking for accolades. I'm just as happy out in the cow barn as anywhere you could put me. I enjoy working on a low key basis with farmers."

It should be noted that Roth was largely responsible for bringing his part of the AI industry together from local units into a state organization much the same way that Pennsylvania DHIA is in the process of doing.

"I've been blessed with good training and have been taught the work ethic," Roth said. "I've been taught sound basic principles from a Christian family. I have tried to make it easy for farmers to identify with me."

Roth has been General Manager of Atlantic since January 1, 1985. He also is Chairman of the Administrative Council of Federated Genetics, a partnership of three AI cooperatives that carries out an extensive national and international semen marketing program.

Raised on a Holstein dairy farm near Allentown, Harry is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State University with a major in dairy science. While at Penn State, he was active in the Ag Honorary Society, Dairy Science Club, Dairy Judging Team, and Delta Theta Sigma fraternity. Roth was a member of the York County, Pennsylvania Agricultural Extension staff for one and a half years prior to his career in AI in 1956. Starting as a fieldman for Western Pennsylvania Artifical Breeding Cooperative at Clarion, he later assumed the duties of sire analyst and was named general mamager in October of 1960. He held that position until the July, 1964 merger with Southeastern Pennsylvania ABC to form Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, when he was named breed programs director. He served as operations director prior to being named general manager.

Roth is a member of the Board of Directors for the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show and for 13 years was chairman of the show's Invitational Youth Dairy Judging Contest. He was approved by the Purebred Dairy Cattle Association to judge Holstein and Guernsey shows. In 1970 he was alternate judge for all three national Holstein shows and judged the Western National the following year.

He served on the Board of Directors for the National Association of Animal Breeders from 1977 to 1983, including one year as President. He currently serves on the NAAB's Managers and Nominating Committees and has been active on the Long-Range Planning, Ethics and Practices, Research, and Dairy Sire Evaluation & Genetic Improvement Committees. He is also a member of the Dairy Shrine Club and Gamma Sigma Delta.

Roth currently serves on the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives' Finance Committee and the Program Development Committee for its director and officer training program. He is on the Board of Directors of Penn State's College of Agriculture Advisory Council. He is also a member of the Governor's Partnership Board on Economic Development for the State of Pennsylvania.

Roth is an active member of the Zion Church at Millersville. He and his wife Ruth have three daughters and five grandchildren.

The NAAB convention is scheduled to be held August 24-26, 1994, at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

Chester Holstein Breeders Set Field Day

COCHRANVILLE (Chester Co.) — The 1994 Chester County Holstein field day is scheduled to be held at the farm of Harry and Dorothy Troop on Thursday, August 11.

The Troops emigrated to Chester County from Lancaster County in 1966. Their family includes four children: Jeanette, David, Diane, and Joyce. David and his family still work in the operation.

The farm is located south of Cochranville off Route 10. The Faggs-Manor prefex comes from the historic Faggs-Manor Presbyterian Church, which is directly south of the farm.

The rolling herd average on DHIA test is 22,000m 763f 690p. The herd consists of 62 milk cows and 70 replacement heifers. The herd has been 100 percent registered for the past 25 years.

The Troops have bred two excellent cows. The first was sold to a buyer from California. The most recent one was Faggs-Manor Ivanhoe Star Donna EX-90. She has produced over 160,000m in seven lactations. Her calves have been shown at the 4-H and local dairy shows by the grandchildren.

The speaker and judge for the contest in the morning will be Ron Wood, Gor-Wood-O Holsteins, Mansfield. Ron is also a director of the Holstein Association.

The field day starts at 10 a.m. There will be a chicken bar-b-que for noon lunch. The cost is $4 for adults, $2 for children 4-12 years, and those under four are free. So bring the whole family for a fun-filled day at Troops.

The farm is located two miles south of the intersection of Route 10 and Route 41. Go south on Route 10 and make a left turn on Troop Road.

For reservations call Jane Pepple: 932-3975; Stan Guest: 469-6627; or Dick Hostetter: 857-2780. Deadline is August 3.

each piece of cake, sweet bun, each cup of canned fruit, each cup of baked beans or canned spaghetti etc. Ice cream can have three or more tablespoons per cup. That's very poisonous proportions. I saw a recipe for sweet pickles that calls for nine cups of sugar to 25 pickles. That's very bad and wild.

Sugar high intake leads to heart trouble, high and low blood pressure, and even cancer. I knew of a lot of people that ate a lot of sugar and got cancer. Dogs and cats have high rates of cancer because their foods have a high amount of bakery byproducts such as cakes and cookies and candies.

Diabetes means that the pancreas is destroyed or worn out by too much sugar and can't make insulin.

It's wise to cut out sugar now than after diabetes sets in. After diabetes sets in legs and arms get amputated and real misery sets in.

I've seen diabetes victims with both legs amputated. I never heard of anybody having to have their legs amputated because of nicotine but over sugar yes.

It's time to declare war on sugar and stop that murder. Indians and early settlers lived without it and were healthy. It's too late when we discover that we have diabetes. And the sugar industry should be held responsible for the damages. They have no business to entice us to such a poison.

Grazing Can Be Long-Lasting, Effective Feed Source If Managed Properly

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

And I will send grass in thy fields for thy cattle that thou mayest eat and be full.
Deuteronomy 11:15

BETWEEN OXFORD AND KIRKWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — To about 85 farmers who attended a tour of the Lindenhof Guernsey Farm here last week, the grazing season may be long enough, indeed.

Through the heavy heat and humidity, visitors took off their straw hats to use handkerchiefs to wipe away sweat from a blazing sun. It looked to be a typical summer day.

A few days before, about two inches of rain fell heavily on the 50 acres of pasture that the 56-cow herd uses at various times throughout the season.

While some farmers shy away from grazing the animals because of the "short" season, for those at the Lindenhof Farm (managed by the brother-sister partnership of Axel and Millie Linde), the season can last from late February well into November.

With a little common-sense rumen management and knowledge about feed, dairy farmers can take advantage of the relatively long grazing season that exists in some areas of southeastern Pennsylvania and Maryland.

When grazing alfalfa, the important thing to remember, according to Millie Linde, is that "when a cow leaves the barn, she's not to be super-hungry. Let her have some dry hay in her so when she's gone out here, she doesn't attack it like she would candy. It is candy to her, and you keep her under control by having some dry matter in her."

The Lindes have used grazing in their operation for more than 40 years. Axel and Millie use a combination of grazing techniques, including a passive system which allows the cattle to move by themselves from the barn into a "pentagon" area that links five separate, permanent pasture fields. The gates are open so that, whenever they want to, the cows can make their way onto some newly seeded mixed alfalfa stands, chicory stands, or hay mixtures.

The Lindes also use a "back-fencing" technique using fiberglass posts and multistranded polywire to move cattle around in some of the paddocks. This intensive rotational grazing system ensures that the feed is available in the right amounts and is managed correctly.

The pasture areas "have been forever and ever pasture," said Axel. One alfalfa field is still producing well into its fifth year.

The Lindes have to control some weed problems, mostly Canada thistle and horsenettle. Also, when leafhoppers become evident, some pesticides have to be used.

They also grow corn mostly for corn silage. The remainder is used for high-moisture corn.

In the Linde's grazing operation, on one side of the farm, three alfalfa fields measure about 1½ acres each. The cows graze them only at night, three nights each.

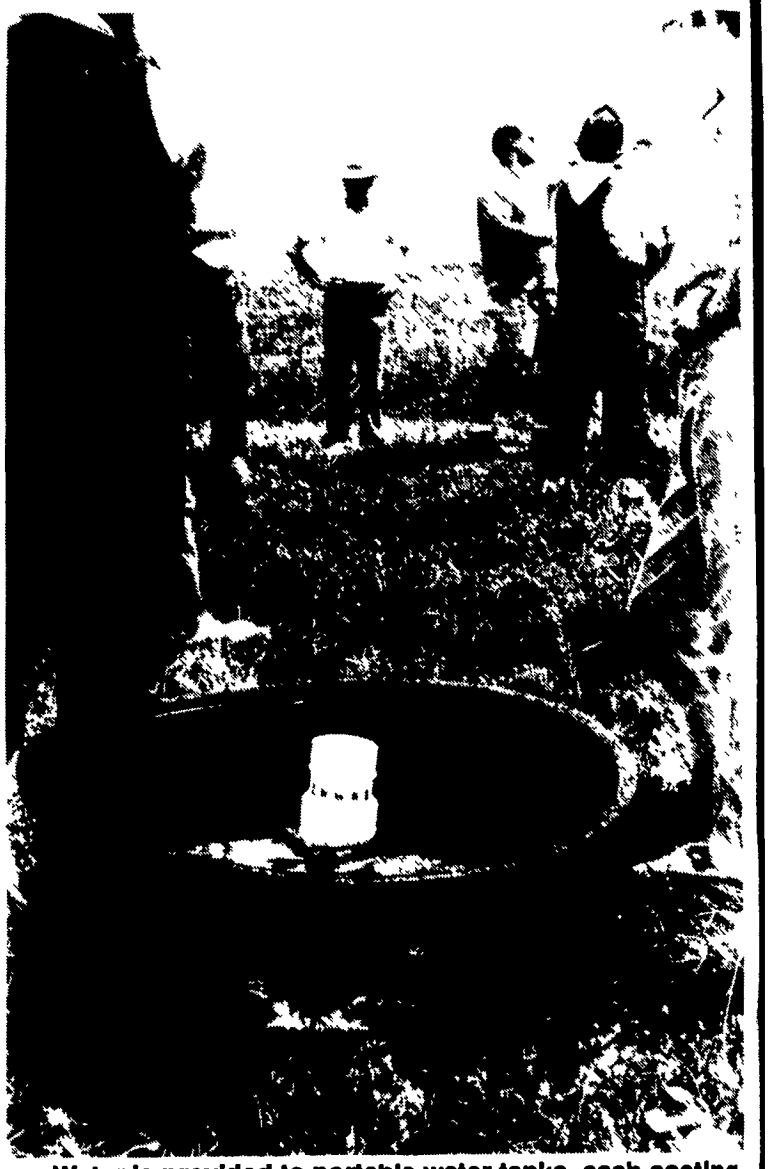
They graze at night, according to Millie, because of the lack of trees for shade.

Water is provided to portable water tanks, each costing about $40, that hold 25 gallons each. Water is pumped from a main well near the house.

In some of the fields, volunteer clover also grows, which can be an important feed source, according to grazing experts. "Some years, cows like clover better, other years

(Turn to Page A28)

The importance of dry hay in pasture rations is critical, according to Leslie Yoder, herd nutritionist. It's important for the herd manager to be flexible in feeding cows and to properly balance the grazing.



Water is provided to portable water tanks, each costing about $40, that hold 25 gallons each. Water is pumped from a main well near the house.

When grazing alfalfa, the important thing to remember, according to Millie Linde, right, is that "when a cow leaves the barn, she's not to be super-hungry. Let her have some dry hay in her so when she's gone out here, she doesn't attack it like she would candy. It is candy to her, and you keep her under control by having some dry matter in her." At left is Axel.

Two young farmers don plastic boots for biosecurity on the tour of Lindenhof Farm. Here, chicory is grazed about four times in the season. It is cut after the second and fourth grazing. The cut materials (100 bales off of a two-acre parcel) are used for heifer bedding, according to Axel.

The Lindes also placed some tall fescue near one of the barns at the Lindenhof Farm. The fescue was installed to help retain soil, but for grazing, the cows like it only when it is young, according to Axel.

A young farmer waits through a discussion of the watering tanks to get to dinner after the grazing field day.

Grazing Can Be Long-Lasting

they like the alfalfa," said Axel. "It really depends on the weather situation."

When the grass fields aren't being grazed, hay is made.

"You need to have some stored feed for the winter months," said Millie.

The hay from the grass pastures is used in the winter to feed the bred heifers and dry cows. The alfalfa and clovers goes into the milking barn for the milking cows in the wintertime.

Chicory is also grazed about four times in the season. It is cut after the second and fourth grazing. The cut materials (100 bales off of a two-acre parcel) are used for heifer bedding, according to Axel.

The Lindes also graze sudangrass, matua, and will plant oats next week to graze through October into November.

The Lindes also placed some tall fescue near one of the barns. The fescue was installed to help retain soil, but for grazing, the cows like it only when it is young, according to Axel.

Water is supplied to a series of portable tanks. A pH adjuster, using a calcium carbonate material, was installed in the spring. At one time, the water read 5.5 pH, according to Axel, and now stands at 6.8-6.9. This has helped eliminate algae buildup in the watering troughs.

Pasturing is a healthy way to feed animals. Millie said that, at one time, her herd suffered from Johne's disease, which was treated successfully and now tests negative. It is possible to put young stock on the pastures as long as they are kept away from the manure from older stock. The sun, according to Axel, acts as a disinfectant, and the pastures are cleaner.

The importance of dry hay in pasture rations is critical, according to Leslie Yoder, herd nutritionist. It's important for the herd manager to be flexible in feeding cows and to properly balance the grazing.

Pasture quality can vary quite a bit throughout the season, according to Yoder. In the spring, the energy levels of pasture material can rival high-quality corn, and, in fact, can supply too much soluable protein. The energy levels drop in summertime, so dry material is essential. It may be important to add a bypass protein to the diet to supplement the needs of the higher-producing cows.

The Lindes milk about 56 head of registered Guernseys, with 56 replacement stock. Latest DHIA averages are 16,600 pounds milk, 690 pounds fat, and 590 pounds protein.

The grazing field day was sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

State Sheep Producers To Meet, Have Ram Sale

KEMPTON (Berks Co.) — Everyone interested in the sheep and wool industry has a special invitation to attend the Pennsyvlania Sheep and Wool Growers Association meeting at the ag arena at Penn State Saturday, August 6. Many popular events are scheduled, including the Pennsylvania Performance Ram Sale.

Joseph Vogel, president, sent word that many critical issues will be discussed at this meeting. Subjects include: continuance of the test center; extension efforts for Pa. sheep producers; forage test programs, on-farm research; sheep to shawl program; and many more.

The program agenda is as follows:

10 a.m. — PSWGA update on activities, reports, etc.

11 a.m. — Pa. Sheep and Lamb Marketing program.

12 noon — Lamb barbecue lunch available. Centre County 4-H w/Mrs. Harpster. Also music interlude — Mrs. John Courtney.

Additional displays and items of interest and concern throughout the day will include: a representative of the Scrapie Board will be available for discussions; a representative of the dog law enforcement agency will be available to talk with producers and the Pa. Wool Queen will have a display and be available to visit.

"Producer participation is the key if our industry is to be successful and assure growth," Vogel said.

Dairy Sales Set

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va. — There is going to be two sales of dairy cattle here on August 27.

The sales are being held at the Marshall County Fairgrounds, with Denny Remsburg as sale manager and auctioneer. Dick Chichester from Select Sires will be on hand to read the pedigrees of these top level Holsteins.

The first sale is the 4-H Dairy Genetics sale. The bred heifers in this sale have all ben raised by 4-H'ers from a five-county area. Each of the animals has to meet requirements of production and type in its background before it can even be eligible for the program. Buyers for this sale have the opportunity to improve the production of their dairy herd, along with helping a 4-H'er complete their project.

The second sale is being sponsored by the West Virginia Holstein Association. This sale bill looks outstanding, with animals being consigned from four states.

Animals of all ages have been consigned to the sale and many of them are in their prime production period of the current lactation. This is the first year that identified grade animals have been accepted into the sale.

Ivan McCombs, former president of the association, reports that hauling services will be made available for any of the buyers who want the service.

"A bargain contact ought to cost at least $5-a-gallon less than Off-Shoot-T...or it's no bargain."

Our price is set by the quality ingredients we use and the special care we take in formulation.Off-Shoot-T is a premium product that delivers premium performance. University tests over a 5-year period prove that Off-Shoot-T helps produce an average increase of 86 pounds per acre, compared with popular "bargain" contacts. That's a bonus of as much as $135 an acre.

If we lowered any of our quality standards, we could sell Off-Shoot-T at a bargain price, but you wouldn't be getting premium performance. You wouldn't be getting Off-Shoot-T.

So if you are going to shop for a bargain this year, make sure it's a real Bargain-Off-Shoot-T.

And count on an increased yield that will more than pay back the few extra cents you spend for premium performance.

1. Rain won't matter if Off-Shoot-T has been on over an hour. If it has been on less than an hour you may need to reapply the chemical.

Dark Tobacco: 6-8 ounces per gallon of water. (This is one part Off-Shoot-T to approximately 16-21 parts water.)

Maryland Tobacco: 4-4 1/2 onces per gallon of water. (This is one part Off-Shoot-T to approximately 25-30 parts water.) One gallon diluted product will treat approximately 190 plants

In university tests, and in the field, Off-Shoot-T sets the sucker control standards.

Dealers Learn About New Tractor Lines

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — In an educational meeting, 75 regional CaseIH dealers were introduced to the new lone of Case International tractors ranging from 42 to 85 PTO horsepower. The meeting Tuesday in the Holiday Inn featured mechanical and sales instruction.

The five new models follow the large tractor lines and feature the high-flow hydraulic systems and improvements to the transmission and cooling systems. Other modifications have been made to the models with cabs, and a new hood styling enhances visibility and provides a family appearance with Magnum and Maxxum tractors. Cab models have excellent visibility, particularly upward for loader work.

All transmission controls are on the right side for improved productivity. The right-hand console also incorporates other key controls. The new line of tractors are intended for a large group of chores around the farm such as feedlot, loader and hay chores or PTO work on mowers, augers or utility work.

Headquartered in Racine, Wis., JI Case is a worldwide manufacturer and marketer of Case International agricultural equipment and Case construction equipment.

The dealers spent the day in small seminar groups. Dennis Hann, eastern region sales manager, in tractor cab, discusses the features of the new 4210.

Cyanamid Reports Record Second Quarter Results

WAYNE, N.J. — American Cyanamid Company (NYSE:ACY) announced today record second quarter sales, earnings from continuing operations and net earnings.

Earnings from continuing operations and net earnings in the second quarter of 1994 were $185 million, or $2.06 per share, compared to a second quarter 1993 loss from continuing operations of $235 million, or $2.61 per share, and a net loss of $229 million, or $2.54 per share. Second quarter 1993 results included a one-time charge of $378 million, or $4.21 per share, related to the company's acquisition of a majority interest in Immunex Corporation (NASDAQ:IMNX) and net earnings from discontinued operations of $6 million, or $.07 per share. Excluding these items, net earnings per share and earnings per share from continuing operations in the second quarter of 1993 would have been $1.60.

The prior periods have been restated to reflect the results of Cytec Industries as discontinued operations.

Worldwide sales rose 20 percent in the second quarter of 1994 to $1.50 billion compared to $1.25 billion in the same period a year ago. The increase was due primarily to international sales of agricultural products associated with the Shell acquisition in December 1993. Increased sales of Pursuit herbicide, consumer health products and generic pharmaceuticals also contributed to the performance.

Commenting on the second quarter results, Albert J. Costello, Cyanamid Chairman and CEO, said "Our agricultural business was exceptionally strong in the second quarter due to good demand for our environmentally friendly herbicides, principally Pursuit which has seen greater use in conservation tillage, and the addition of the international business acquired from Shell."

Worldwide sales of the company's Agricultural Group rose in the second quarter of 1994 compared to the same period last year, led by increased worldwide sales of crop protection chemicals, primarily sales of products acquired from Shell and higher U.S. sales of Pursuit herbicide. Due to favorable weather conditions this year, some sales of Pursuit that would have been expected to occur in the third quarter of this year shifted to the second quarter. The Group's operating earnings increased in the second quarter of 1994 compared to the same period a year ago due to the impact of sales of products acquired from Shell and higher U.S. sales of crop protection chemicals. Due to the seasonality of the agricultural business, which is concentrated in the first six months of the year, performance in the first half of 1994 is not indicative of the results to be expected for the full year.

be developed and disseminated across the state to raise public awareness about nitrogen pollution of groundwater. In concept, the educational worksheet is to be called a "Personal Nitrogen Worksheet." It is to help people understand their own contributions to the flow of nitrogen in the environment.

Another edcuational program is the to be a program conducted by the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay that is to educate local elected officials, staff, planners and others about non-point source pollution. It is to consist of a morning seminar and an afternoon field trip. The Alliance is also to compile a computer listing of relevant information on non-point source pollution. The list is to be available statewide. No funding amount was listed.

The third educational project is to be the development of a video that would educate the general public about watersheds and the factors involved with controling non-point source pollution. Aerial video is to be used. Specifically, an EPA statement refers to the use of a helicopter to do the work.

Tri-Regional Conference

A total of $12,820 is to be used to coordinated a Tri-Regional Conference on non-point source pollution. Participants to the conference are to be the state agencies, 319 program staff from EPA Regions 3, 4 and 6, and representatives of those regions.

Toby Creek

DER is to come up with a match to the EPA's grant of $1,391,573 to pay for the costs of puting an acid mine treatment plant on Little Toby Creek, in Elk County. The treatment is to be done with limestone and is expected to cost more than $2 million to get started. The state money comes from special funds provided through a legislated bond issue appropriation, according to an EPA statement.

Soil Microbial Enhancement

A total of $130,015 has been allocated to a project that is to focus on rebuilding humus and microbe levels in soils in order to better treat nutrients and provide for cleaner recharge water to the ground, etc. "The research will focus on humus and microbial biomass measurements in acutal field situations under standard and microbe-enhanced trials. Water quality and crop response will be monitored to document the environmental and production enhancement values of a healthy soil ecosystem compared to standard or traditional farming methods. The project is slated for Lackawanna County.

Artificial Wetland-Field Drain

Work done by the Susquehanna River Basin Commission to create a shallow groundwater catching and treatment project built on a farm in Dauphin County which was reported by Lancaster Farming earlier this year. In that article, it was announced that the SRBC hoped to develop a similar project in Lancaster County. The EPA grant is to provide $86,160 to develop that project in Lancaster County.

Treating First Flush

The first "flush" of storm water has been found to contain the majority of non-point source contaminants. A program to test the effectiveness of the concept of a two-stage detention basin to treat that first flush of surface storm water runoff is to be financed with $104,000. The concept is to catch the first flush of water in a first basin and then allow the later water to bypass that basin to a larger, downhill basin. The downhill basin is to have a permanent wetland pool to treat water. It is expected that the the combination of detention time, ground movement and the permanent wetland pool in the second basin will be effective in treating all the storm water.

Wetlands Restoration

A total of $105,000 is earmarked to be used to fence at least 22 miles of stream, fence or restore at least 50 acres of wetlands, and establish 1,000 acres of warm season grasses in a watershed in Union County.

Limestone Drains

A total of $137,145 is set to be used develop limestone drains to treat acidic ground water discharges at abandonded deep coal mines in the headwaters of Swatara Creek, in Lebanon County. The project is to look at the effecacy of using the limestone drains under oxic and anoxic conditions.

East Branch Codorus Creek

A program to restore the East Branch of Codorus Creek in York County is to get $100,000 with the project focusing on stream corridor management, such as stream bank stabilization, sediment reduction, wetlands restoration and fish habitat improvement.

Bear Rock Run Habitat Improvement

A restoration project for Cambria County's acid mine affected Bear Rock Run is to receive $140,000 to develop limestone trenches, and artificial wetlands to deal with the acid mine and metal discharges, and help stabilize the stream and remove sedimentation.

Oven Run Acid Drainage

Somerset County's Stony Creek Conemaugh River Improvement Project is to get $86,000 for its multi-agency effort to treat acid mine drainage and restore water quality.

Old-Time Plowboys Club At Heemet Fescht For Second Year

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — While people are enjoying themselves at Heemet Fescht the Old-Time Plowboys will be hard at work cultivating the fields as the group returns to the festival for a second year. Heemet Fescht is held Aug. 13 and 14 at Kutztown University's Pennsylvania German Cultural Heritage Center. Admission is free at the festival, which also features craft, food, music and lectures about Pennsylvania German culture.

Since its founding four years ago, membership has grown and the Plowboy's mission of preserving traditional farming methods has educated many spectators. Cindy Mackiewicz, secretary of The Old-Time Plowboys and wife of founding member and president Chester Mackiewcz, says she is surprised by its popularity.

"There are 420 members. Since we started in May of 1990, we grew very fast...But there was a desire for these collectors to get together," she says of the Berks County-based group. "For the most part, the members are local, but there are 25 members from New Jersey, and we have members from Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, and Florida."

All members had a piece of farming equipment which helped bring them together as well as a willingness to teach agricultural history through their frequent demonstrations. Cindy comments,

State Farm Show Complex Undergoing $1.2 Million Floor Fix

Farm Show complex was designed to install a permanent, non-skid epoxy floor finish in the 145,000-square-foot exhibition hall so that animals and people have less risk of falling and being injured than on the slick tile.

Schenck said he has examined a sample of what the finished floor is to become and said it is "rubbery," and is expected to provide a durable, cushioning floor surface.

The project was not undertaken to remove asbestos. Asbestos in tiling is common and poses no health hazard, unless the tile is drilled or disturbed in such a manner that it would be crushed and tile-dust containing asbestos released into the air.

According to Schenck, the contractor removing the tile flooring apparently has been following proper procedures in the removal and handling of the asbestos-containing tiles. Schenck said workers have been wearing special suits and air-breathing masks and have the work area contained in plastic.

It is not certain that asbestos was actually in the air of the offices. All that is certain is that officials received a report of a high asbestos reading from the contractor doing the job.

"So, as a precaution, we sent everybody (Farm Show office employees) home (on Tuesday)," Schenck said.

General testing is to continue by the Department of General Services, Schenck said.

Although Wednesday's air testing readings would have allowed for the staff to return to their offices, Schenck said it was decided to keep them out for at least two more days.

"(The reading was) high Tuesday and low Wednesday. Still, it was decided to keep people out of the building for two more working days," he said, adding that the staff had been reporting to the ag building and was given temporary assignments for the remainder of the week.

Schenck said Thursday that several considerations were being mulled by officials.

"Under consideration is moving the offices for the remainder of the project period, hoping to have the old floor tile removed by the end of August," he said. "We have to shut down the project after August because of some shows coming in, like the All-American."

Schenck explained that doing repairs and improvements to the complex has to be scheduled during lulls in scheduled activities at the complex.

"They have to work on the project when the building is vacant," he said, noting that "There's another 18-day work window later in the fall, we were hoping at that time to install the epoxy non-skid surface. It's not clear yet if there is enough time.

"We're hopeful, at this point, that this won't affect any shows," Schenck said. "We would really like to get the floor done."

The high-ceilinged, one-story Main Exhibit Hall is part of the "interior" of the massive Farm Show Complex, which consists of the Large Arena, Small Arena, North Building, Northwest building, Northeast Building, East Building and West Building, and the Lobby Building, which is where the staff offices are located.

The entrance to the Main Exhibit Hall is through the narrow two-story Lobby building that stretches along the southern face of the building complex, facing McClay Street.

Farm Show officials separate the Lobby Building into the Main Lobby, with its two levels and the East and West lobbies.

The ground-level of the Lobby Building is the central foyer to the Main Exhibit Hall, with a coat check room, and telephones. In the foyer, there is an elevator to the second floor offices.

The rest of the first floor of the Lobby building — the "wings" from the foyer, or the East and West lobbies — is a series of rooms with large display cases.

In many schools and older public buildings during the past decade, a number of asbestos removal projects have been done, with federal support. During those projects, usually the air within the plastic containment is drawn through a filter, and workers pass through a type of chamber that serves to prevent the escape of workplace air into the surrounding building.

A similar setup is being used with the tile removal at the Farm Show Complex.

Old-Time Plowboys Club

"The Plowboys demonstrate antique farming to educate the younger generation. Old-time farming ways are being forgotten, and we're giving free demonstrations so that people can watch and learn."

Some of the oldest pieces owned by members are a 1919 International Mogul Tractor and an International F20 Tractor from the early 1930s that was originally shown at a World's Fair.

These pieces were acquired by local members who traded or donated them. "Both of these pieces were hard to find because they are still in working order and they are extremely rare," Mackiewicz says.

The Old-Time Plowboys demonstrate or display their pieces for good causes. Every year they display at Becky's Drive-In, New Berlinsville, for the Dream Come True Foundation to aid terminally ill children. They also appear at other local events.

"We've participated in Halloween parades for fire companies. This year we'll be at the Kutztown Fair and the Allentown Fair, and we just got done displaying at Longswamp Community Day," she says. "We also have two shows a year at the Kutztown University farm. One is in spring, and one is in fall where we are physically using the equipment on the farm and cultivating."

The Plowboys are enthusiastic about this year's Heemet Fescht, and they will be involved in many activities. For youngsters, there will be an old-fashioned pedal tractor that kids can use and actually pedal. There also will be old-time children's relay games including a peanut toss, a 3-legged wheelbarrow race, and a sack race. An antique tractor pull for adults is also planned. The Plowboys will have a tractor parade featuring more than 50 tractors and demonstrations including cultivating, shingle milling, corn grinding, and threshing.

Between scheduled events, spectators at Heemet Fescht are invited to view the Plowboys's equipment and ask them questions. For more information about Heemet Fescht, call (610) 683-1330 or 4113.

81-Year-Old McCullough Hook Continues Farming

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WOLMESDORF (Berks Co.) — McCullough Hook remembers the days when he was featured in newspapers and national magazines for hosting 23,000 children on tours of his farm.

Although Hook is now 81 years old, he isn't sitting in a rocking chair simply remembering the good, old days. Instead this energetic octogenarian puts in 15- to 17-hour days working on the family farm, cooking, canning, cleaning, and taking care of his wife Anna who is disabled from Parkinson's disease, which is a chronic progressive nervous disorder of later life that is marked by tremor and weakness of resting muscles.

"Annie and I always stuck together and we always will," Hook says when asked why he doesn't rely upon nursing care for his wife.

"She helped make me what I am today. We are still partners regardless of the condition she's in," he said.

That care often requires Hook to arise seven to 11 times during the night to assist Annie.

But Hook is not complaining. He said, "Sitting around makes you stiff. As long as I move around, I can't get stiff."

Hook learned responsibility early. When he was 13 years old, his father died. As the oldest child, Hook felt the responsibility of helping to keep the family, which included an 8-year-old sister, a 2½ -year-old brother, and a six week-old baby.

Some people discouraged his mother from trying to keep the children and suggested she let others adopt the children, and return to her childhood home in Virginia. Hook remembers the event as clears as if it were today.

He recalled, "My mother put her arm around me and said, "I want our family to stay together. I don't want a split family."

Hook vowed to do his part. He had learned to plow with horses when he was only eight years old. That was when, the plow hit slate and the plow handles bounced up and knocked out several of his teeth.

"From then on, I knew the right way to hold a plow," Hook said.

Fortunately, his mother was no novice to farming. She grew up on a farm, her husband had not, so she always said that she had taught him everything he learned about farming.

With the help of neighbors and friends, the family managed to stay together and keep the farm in Wolmesdorf on which Hook still farms today.

When Hook brought his girlfriend (whom he later married) to the family farm, she was afraid of the cows and ran and hid until the cows were tied in their stalls.

Hook's mother told her, "If you want to go with him, bring some old clothes along next time, and I'll teach you to milk."

Annie bravely took her advice.

"Soon she could outmilk my mother and me," Hook said of the girl he soon married.

"When we married, we didn't have much money. My wife made flapjacks to sell and milked 28 cows by hand while I worked in the brickyards at night," he said.

During the day, Hook hauled school children to school in the car and helped do the morning milking and field work. The couple purchased few groceries — only sugar, salt, and safety matches — everything else was raised on the farm.

After two years of working in the brickyard, Hook was able to go into full-time farming. The couple rented an adjoining farm to their mother's.

"Back then, all you needed to get a loan from the bank was ambition and a reputation to do what you promised," Hook said.

Loans were repaid not by set payment fees and dates but by how much you could afford when you sold your crop.

Later, the couple moved to Bernville and rented a large farm there for 37 years.

"I was the first guy in the area in 1940 to lay the farm in contour strips. This is my pride and joy," Hook said as he showed a colored photograph that clearly depicts the contour farming techniques.

Hook takes a break from his duties. Although he is 81-years-old, he continues to put in long days doing the field work on the 118-acre farm and the additional 120 acres that are rented.

Bernville was also the place where Hook began to hold farm tours long before they became popular.

"It started with the FFA boys. Soon I was getting requests from schools and Girl and Cub Scouts located as far away as Allentown and Harrisburg."

Hook limited the tours to Berks County where every school but one participated. The tours included hay rides and chocolate milk, which Clover Farm Dairies provided.

Hook still has thousands of letters received from the children who visited the farm.

The Hooks themselves had five children and now have 12 grandchildren.

While Hook was farming in Bernville, he continued to help his mother on her farm until 1980, when he made sale of the Bernville livestock and equipment and moved back to the family farm, where he built a house on the acreage. He laid the block and brick himself. He had learned to do that when fire destroyed his Bernville barn and he helped to rebuild it. He also built several structures on the Wolmesdorf farm and added to the two houses on the farm. Installing block glass windows is also one of his skills and one which he used in the barn. He is quite proud that the barn is so well lighted from installation of the block glass on two sides.

From 1985 to 1987, Hook also kept his mother who in her final years had Alzheimer's disease.

"My wife and my mother sat all day long in facing chairs," said Hook who believes home care is the best care that can be given to family members.

Hook had taken over cooking duties in 1980.

My wife was an excellent cook, but this Parkinson Disease just didn't let her continue," he said.

Some days Annie is able to walk gingerly by herself and other days she can barely move even with Hook grew up on this 118-acre farm on which he continues to work. He said, "Best land you want to find here on this farm. We can match crops here with Lancaster County.

Homestead Notes

This is the crew that keeps the Hook farm going. From left: Jim Hook, Garrion Shaw, hired man; McCullough, Debbie, and Loretta Hook. Loretta is in charge of the 80 cows since her husband died of cancer in 1991. Daughter Debbie takes care of the calves and about 40 head of replacements. Jim helps milk and do field work. McCullough is responsible for field work, equipment repair, and managing the farm.

Hook holds a can of cookies he baked. His wife Anna has Parkinson disease and is unable to do household chores so Hook cooks, bakes, and cans food in addition to working on the farm.

help. The medication costs $300 a month.

"Most days her mind is good and sometimes she has better sense than I, but if she falls down, she can't get up," he said.

Hook himself never went to a doctor until he was 67 years old.

"I had a little bit of heart trouble, but I got over it," he said.

He reads extensively and now takes vitamins and herbs, which he believes enables him to work tirelessly.

Despite becoming caretaker and housekeeper, Hook keeps up the tradition of holding family holiday meals for 28 family members.

He cans 250 jars with such things as chow chow, spaghetti sauce, beans, peaches, and all types of pickles and a cococotion called pickle hash made with cucumbers, onions, celery, vinegar, spices, sugar and water.

He fills a 12-gallon crock with homemade sauerkraut and makes 50 gallons of applebutter to share with other family members.

"I got more than 150 recipes from Lancaster Farming and they are darn good recipes," he said.

Hook has this advice for other men: "Husbands better take good care of their wives, because you find out how hard they worked when you need to do everything yourself."

His son to whom Hook had turned over the livestock and the equipment on the home farm died of cancer in 1991. His daughter-in-law Loretta, her son Jim and daughter Debbie take care of the dairy end of the farm.

Field work, equipment repair, and managing the farm is considered Hook's job.

Hook is working on another project and that is to build a 64x50-foot pole shed for hay bale storage.

"The neighbors around here are really good at helping out. When my son had cancer, they really helped us. Just this year, they helped dig out an unloader that was buried in the haylage, and I suspect they'll help build this pole shed," he said.

When Hook works on the farm, he takes his wife along and family members who live on the farm help watch her.

Hook was 65 years old before he discovered he was actually born in 1913 and not 1914.

He had never had a birth certificate since the midwife in Virginia did not send the information to the state. When he was working on establishing a birth record, an older relative told him that the year that he was to begin school, according to state law, it would have required a 15-mile trip daily. His parents told the authorities he was a year younger to avoid the long trip to school. They figured no one would ever know the difference.

No one did — not even Hook — although he was always much bigger than the other children in his class. "I was the one who always had to carry the water and do other chores required in one-room schools during those days," he said.

But the worst offense from the change in his birthdate was "depriving me of driving one year. I had to drive that buggy an extra year," he said.

Although Hook said that his life has not been without troubles, he sees farming becoming more difficult for families today.

"The overhead is just eating us up. It's getting rougher and rougher for a guy to farm. I saw my tax bill go from $53 to $5,800. Workmen's Compensation cost $4,000 annually and one visit from the vet is $100," he said.

"If you don't have a woman behind you, you'd better forget about farming," he advises prospective farmers.

Recently, Clover Farm Dairies gave a special award to Hook for shipping milk to their dairy for 50 years.

"There used to be 22 dairies in Reading. Now there is only one — Clover Farms," said Hook. He likes to think he had a part in their success since he was affiliated with them for 50 years.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

One week before, there was nothing there but a few scattered, loose, floor boards and a broken bale or two of alfalfa hay.

Now, standing atop the stackin the old bank barn center strawmow puts your head up near the main barn beam. These fresh, shiny bales, packed tightly within the strawmow dividers, are the winter bedding supply for the weaned heifers and baby calves.

High up on the bales, in the shadowy, lofty reaches of the old barn, has always been one of my favorite places to pause for a breath during barn chores. Especially after scrambling to the top up a stairstep of bales.

But, just filled, the mow has no stairway, just sheer, shiny sides. Only other way to the top is to climb the straight-up ladders built into the haymow walls. As old as the barn itself, the ladders are made of inch-plue-diameter wooden rounds. The rough-edged, shaping-tool strokes that formed them decades ago have long been smoothed by pairs of feet going to the top.

At the top, one must swing oneself from the rungs, up and over the large, squared bean that forms the upper edge of the mow's side wall, then scramble onto the top of the bale stack. Going down entails putting that same procedure into reverse — swinging one foot out over the beam and onto the top rung, then working backwards to a final drop to the barn floor, while hanging on real tight.

Our youngest found a better way.

When he announced that he and a friend were coming to do some rappellilng on the farm, my stomach knotted up. Rappelling — sort of rock climbing in reverse. Swinging out from the top of a high point and letting oneself down with ropes. A sport in which you can get hurt if not careful. But, then, that's true of just about anything.

He had first tried rappelling in a tall tree and wanted to progress to a wall. Byu the time all personnel and gear were assembled, the wall — which was outside — was wet from a gentle thunderstorm that had swept down on the afternoon. Whew! What a relief for this Mom.

Who should know better. Next thing I knew, the rappelling had been relocated into the high — and dry — reaches of the old barn. From the top of the just-filled straw mow. At least the straw-littered wooden floor of the barn seemed a slightly safer landing spot then the concrete at the foot of the prior site of choice.

His friend Jen was persuaded to be belted into the harness and swung out over the side of the mow, walking herself down the side of the strawmow. She made it look relatively easy. This was too good a chance to pass up.

"Can I try?"

They belted me into the nylon harness, which fits over one's "fanny," and fastens at the front of the waist to the rappelling rope withi thick, aluminum hardware. I climbed the ladder to the top of the strawmow and donned a pair of thick gloves our son handed me. Then he instructed how to put my left hand high on the rope above me, my right hand below on the rope as the "brake," put all by weight into the harness and swing out into thin air.

In other words, Mom, "sit on it."

It worked. I swung out from the beam, and with a couple of jumps down along the sides of the bales, descended to the floor.

Neat! And not very life-threatening from up in a strawmow.

On the other hand, the very idea of swinging out from a mountainside cliff, hundreds of feet above rock-strewn landing spots cushioned only with boulders, sitting my weight in a nylon harness hung onto a rope, with no brake but my own hand, brings justs one thought to mind.

Rappelling.

Think I'll stick to getting my "heights" kicks by scaling the strawmow ladder.

Consuming Thoughts

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Do you want to escape the pressures of everyday living, get back to nature — fresh air, exercise and old-fashioned outdoor cooking?

Camping, when done right, is an ideal way to enjoy the wonders of nature by sleeping out under the stars, and cooking a fresh catch over an open campfire.

Camping can be a rewarding experience — provided you are prepared with proper equipment, food and supplies. Planning is the key to a good camping experience.

How much kitchen equipment you take on a camping trip will depend on your own needs. The basics fall under five categories: cooking equipment, fuel tools, eating utensils, cleaning supplies and storage facilities. Cooking equipment should include pots, pans, can opener, mixing spoons, spatula, hot pads, and an asbestos glove for working around the fire. You may also want to pack some specialized equipment such as roasting skewers or a Dutch oven.

If you plan to cook over a wood fire, bring an ax or hatchet and a bow saw. Shovels, a sharp knife and newspaper also come in handy.

Eating supplies should include bowls, cups, plates, glasses, flatware, napkins, perhaps a vinyl tablecloth. Using disposable products make clean-up easier.

Even if you elect to pack disposable eating ware, be certain to take sufficient supplies for cleaning, cooking and serving equipment. Dishwashing detergent, sponges, towels, a dishpan are some of the basics. Include any of your other special cleaning products.

A tough camping problem is access to reliable tap water. Bring bottled water for drinking or mixing with food. Always assume stream and river waters are not safe to drink. If you camp in remote areas, purchase commercial pruification tablets or equipment and learn purification techniques.

If no safe water supply is available, or your bottled water supply is limited, use disposable wipes to clean your hands when working with food.

Take as few pots as possible. Carry items that fit inside each other. Plan one-pot meals. You can use aluminum foil wrap and pans for cooking, but take garbage bags to carry these items back to appropriate disposal sites.

You can also save cleaning time and keep pots attractive if you rub some liquid detergent over their exteriors before using. This procedure prevents pots from turning black over an open flame. When you have finished cooking, wipe pot exteriors with a damp cloth. You will find that the detergent serves as a protective shield between the bottom of the pot and soot from the fire.

Keeping a camping kitchen neat is frustrating if you don't have proper storage facilities. Take along some handy accessories such as ice chests, thermos bottles, plastic garbage bags and self-sealing plastic bags.

Proper planning insures a comfortable camping experience, and it also makes it possible to clean up with ease. Cleanliness is an important part of a camper's life, and good, experienced campers consider themselves honor-bound to pick up litter in a camp site no matter who left it behind.

Real Juice?

Here's a juicy piece of news: That's delicious "fruit juice" you enjoy many mornings may not be pure juice at all. Fortunately, the Food and Drug Administration's new Nutrition Labeling and Education Act makes it easier to tell what you're really buying. Here are some tips for selecting 100 percent pure fruit juice, from the Florida Department of Citrus:

• Look for the words "100 Percent Pure Juice" on the label.

• Watch out for "juicy" product names. Words like "juice cocktail," "drink," "punch," "sparkler," and "beverage" are often clues that the product is mostly sweeteners and water.

• Choose nutrient-dense juice, such as orange or grapefruit juice. An eight-ounce glass of orange juice or grapefruit juice supplies more than 100 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Value (RDV) of vitamin C for an adult, and is a good source of potassium and folate.

• Look for the Florida Sunshine Tree or Seal of Approval. These are your guarantee that the product you buy is 100 percent pure orange and grapefruit juice. These products are packed to the world's highest standards and are monitored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the State of Florida to ensure quality.

Amazing Tomato Recipes

The flavor of fresh tomatoes depends upon the time they are picked. The less ripe they are when picked, the less flavor. That's why the vine-ripened tomatoes available from your garden taste so much better than those picked green and shipped to local grocery stores.

Now is the time to preserve tomatoes for off-season enjoyment. Canned whole tomatoes, tomato juice, puree, paste, stewed, and ketchup are favorites with those who have time and tomatoes on hand. If not, you can still enjoy the many recipes using fresh tomatoes.

Featured Recipe

Cooling off in summer is easier if you eat light foods. Low-fat desserts can help.

Besides the ice-cold watermelon that contains no fat, you can make luscious desserts with a low-fat recipe. Substituting nonfat or low-fat ingredients in your favorite recipe is one alternative.

Here are some ideas to cut down fat in desserts and a recipe from Althea Engle, Lancaster County extension home economist:

- Use fruit cobbler with a biscuit topping instead of double crust fruit pie.
- Make a one-crust pie instead of double crust pie.
- Make muffins and sweet breads instead of rich cake with icing.
- Serve pudding made with yogurt, low-fat milk or fruit juice.

WHIPPED FRUIT PUDDING

3 cups fruit juice (apple, cranberry, orange, etc.)
½ cup Farina
½ cup real maple syrup
Dash cinnamon and nutmeg
1 cup low-fat yogurt (plain or vanilla)
1 cup fresh fruit (thinly sliced apples, peaches, pears, strawberries)

Heat juice and syrup to boiling. Sprinkle in the Farina and cook slowly, constantly stirring until thick and smooth. Pour into large bowl and whip until light and fluffy. Fold in your choice of fresh fruit, spices, and yogurt. Chill. Serve with whipped nonfat dry milk topping.

Depression Can Occur With Illnesses

When people are medically ill, they often feel "down" or sad. But if the sadness is serious or long-lasting, it may be due to clinical depression. Discussing the symptoms with a doctor is important.

First, if the depressive symptoms are part of the illness or side effects of medication, treatment can be adjusted or changed. Second, if clinical depression is also a problem, it can be treated. And treatment is effective and can start to work within a few weeks.

Your doctor must first find out whether you have one diagnosis or two. This requires careful evaluation, especially in illnesses with similar symptoms.

Weight loss, sleep disturbance, and low energy occur in depression and also in diabetes, cardiovascular disease, vitamin or mineral imbalances and pituitary, adrenal, or thyroid disorders. Symptoms of apathy, poor concentration, and memory loss are found in both depression and dementia. Chronic fatigue syndrome is a medical illness, however, as many as 75 percent of persons with depression experience ongoing fatigue. Depressive symptoms also include achiness which is present in many other conditions.

Depression and medical illnesses may occur together for different reasons. For example:

- Medical disorders may contribute biologically to depression, as with an underactive thyroid or Cushing's disease.
- Medically ill people may become depressed as a psychological reaction to the prognosis, pain, and incapacity caused by the illness or its treatment, as in cancer.
- Though occurring together, depression and a general medical disorder may be unrelated.

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Nancy Kring, Johnstown, would like a recipe for Oriental muffins, a spicy muffin with a brown sugar bottom. If we do not receive an answer to this request within two weeks, we will assume our readers do not know the answer and drop the request.

QUESTION — Ann Lincoln, Genesee, lost her Insterella Mozzarella Cheese recipe that she made from her sweet Jersey milk. Does anyone have the recipe?

QUESTION — A York County reader would like a recipe for poultry stuffing made from crackers instead of bread.

QUESTION — Phyllis Stauffer, Seven Valleys, is looking for a recipe for onion loaf, which can be sliced but is not a bread.

QUESTION — John Oleyar, Bradenville, wants a recipe to make old-time cheese that uses junket tablets. His mom made it. She put the ingredients through a cheesecloth with a weight on it. It was a semi-hard cheese that tasted great.

QUESTION — A Lancaster County reader would like a recipe for pepper jelly made with Karo or white corn syrup.

QUESTION — Hazel Spamer, Perry Hall, would like a chow chow recipe that has chopped cabbage, onions, and red pepper with a sweet pickle base, possibly with turmeric as it had a yellow color. It is very crunchy. She writes that Panzers, a Baltimore family, had made the relish many years ago, but cannot be located now. The Spamers have tasted chow chow from a Lancaster County shoppe but it did not taste at all like the one made with cabbage. Does anyone have a recipe that sounds like it might be the one Hazel is searching for?

QUESTION — Ruth Minor, Arnold, Md., would like a recipe for German Apple Cake, which has brown sugar in the batter and also in the crumb topping. It is the best apple cake that she ever tasted, Ruth said. She had cut the recipe from this column during the past year but lost it. We do not have a file of printed recipes, perhaps one of our readers clipped it and could send it to us.

QUESTION — E. Weaver, Mohnton, would like a recipe for bread sticks like those served by Pizza Hut or someone's favorite recipe.

QUESTION — Deb Williams, Liverpool, would like a recipe for old-fashioned clear toy candy.

QUESTION — A Lititz reader would like recipes using oat bran.

4 cups dry bread crumbs
Poultry seasoning
Dash pepper
6 medium-sized ripe tomatoes

Minced sausage may be added if desired.

Contributor writes that while she was babysitting her 11-month-old grandson, he got hold a Benedril bottle and sucked the lid off it. He picked up his juice bottle and promptly fell to sleep, a deeper sleep than usual. Hazel jostled him a few times, he responded, but not instantly like he usually does. Hazel phoned his father who took the baby to the hospital observation. Rep showed that the baby definitely ingested some Benedril because of his blood pressure, but he was fine after a few hours. Hazel would like to remind adults that they cannot be too careful in watching infants and toddlers.

City Kids Vacation On The Farm

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — Frankie Hamer, 13, from Staten Island, New York City, and Pedro Alicea, 8, from Manhattan, New York City, were absolute strangers until early July.

Now they are almost like brothers. That's because through the Fresh Air Fund, they spent two weeks of summer vacation together at the farm of Elmer and Sara Yoder.

For Pedro, it was his first time ever in the country. He had never seen a farm or farm animals.

But for Frankie, it was his third vacation with the Yoders, even though their two daughters are adults with very young children of their own.

Mrs. Yoder says the Frankie and Pedro enjoyed the farm so much that they were never bored. She and Mr. Yoder didn't have to plan any special entertainment, she said.

Just like farm kids, Frankie and Pedro ran around in their bare feet, except when they helped with chores at milking time.

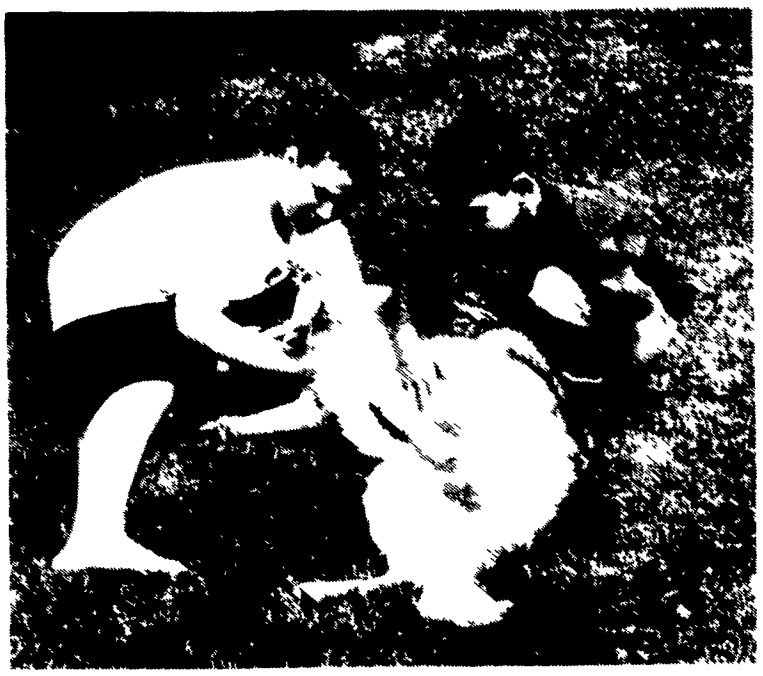
"They wear shoes in the barn because it's kind of dirty there," said Mrs. Yoder.

"My favorite thing is to be with Pirate," said Frankie. "I wish I could take him back with me."

Pirate is the big, burly farm dog that was the favorite playmate of both city boys for romping in the big back yard.

Pedro begged to take the cat home when he left on Tuesday, July 19. That was the day all the Fresh Air Fund kids in the area were boarding two buses at the Maple Glen Mennonite Church in Grantsville, Md., for a long ride home.

A big farm tractor is a fascinating machine especially if you've never seen one in your whole life, like Pedro Alicea, 8, from New York City. He's in the cab at the steering wheel. Standing are Elmer Yoder, left and Frankie Hamer, aged 13, also from New York City. The boys are having a farm vacation through the Fresh Air Fund.



Pirate, the farm dog is a favorite with Frankie Hamer, 13 and Pedro Alicea, 8, who are playing with him on the grass. The boys are at the Elmer and Sara Yoder farm, Meyersdale, Somerset County. They live in New York City but came on vacation through Fresh Air Fund.

Then Frankie reminded Pedro that since the cat was a farm cat, it might not like living in the city.

The boys also liked milking the coes. It was their next favorite thing to playing with Pirate, they said. The Yoders milk 70 Guernsey cows and have 60 heifers.

Frankie made everybody laugh when he teased the Yoders. "The reason they put up the Fresh Air Fund is to have help on the farm," he said, mischievously.

Pedro was unable to sit still. When Elmer let him sit in the big, big cab of the orange tractor, Pedro looked like the king driver in charge of the parked machine.

He has three sisters and two brothers. One sister is Pedro's twin. She was with a different Fresh Air Fund family while he was with the Yoders.

Mrs. Yoder said that Frankie's mother has visited the farm twice. Mrs. Hamer wanted to meet the folks who took care of her kids (Frankie's sisters used to come) for two weeks. She wanted to see the farm where they lived.

An adorable Guernsey calf was born during the boys' vacation at the Yoders. When it came time to take a picture of the boys and the calf, it wanted to frolic instead of standing still.

Mr. and Mrs. Yoder have hosted Fresh Air Fund kids for 12 years. Mrs. Yoder is on the committee that matches the Fresh Air kids with host families. The head person is named Alice Orendorf.

Mrs. Orendorf said sometimes a family will take Fresh Air Fund kids only one year. Then they quit. Mrs. Orendorf said she wishes many more families would host the children from New York City. She said it's very important to get the children out of the city. The parents want their children to have the experience, she said.

If you know someone who would host a child in 1995 they can call this telephone number: 1-800-367-0003. This number will connect them to the Fresh Air Fund in New York City. The peopel there will suggest which Fresh Air Fund "Friendly Town" coordinator to contact.

The Fresh Air Fund is quite old, more than 100 years. It provides vacations with volunteer families in 13 states from Virginia and north to Canada.

If you like making new friends, maybe the Fresh Air Fund can help you make a great new friend in New York City.

Oh, by the way, you don't have to live on a farm to be a Fresh Air Fund host family. They live in smaller cities and towns as well as in the country.

This week-old Guernsey calf won't hold still for the camera. Trying to steady him are Ganene Yoder, Frankie Hamer, 13, Sara Yoder, and Pedro Alicea in front of Sara. Frankie and Pedro are Fresh Air kids on a vacation at Elmer and Sara Yoder's farm near Meyersdale, Somerset County.

Crayola crayons are among the world's most popular, being clearly marked, sturdy and color-true. The company's markers don't bleed through paper, squeak or smell. Every child who enters receives a Camp Cookie iron-on suitable for T-shirts.

The entery form can be found on the back panel of boxes of Bugs Bunny and Teddy Grahams cookies. These carry scenes from Camp Cookie for the child to color and send in to the address on the box.

Becoming More Professional

When Susan began to speak at my workshop on pricing crafts, I knew almost immediately that there was a problem with her business — a problem she didn't know she had. She talked about how she'd started her craft business in an effort to make some spending money while caring for her preschoolers. She made items to sell now and then, blending work hours around her family's hectic schedule. She sold at craft shows, not on a regular basis, but when the table fees were low enough and her inventory was large enough. And, of course, she added, she sold items at a rate that was much lower than her competitors because she was really an amateur and saw this as a way to make pin money. Although she wasn't sure that her prices covered the costs and her time, she felt that everything was alright because she got to be with her children when she was needed.

Susan's problem was that she was playing at being in business, rather than taking the entrepreneurial challenge head on. Although she was making some money, by not setting goals, not knowing whether she was doing something profitable, and by engaging in her venture now and again, she was actually wasting hours not spent with her family, rather than making the most of every minute. This is because, like many home-based business people, Susan did not consider herself to be a professional, and did not work at letting other people see her as one.

Setting a professional tone from the start is an important way to ensure business success. According to Debra J. Perosio, of Cornell University, it's been said that in the business and professional world, people form their lasting impression of you within 30 seconds of meeting you. Generally, if we see a person (or business) in a favorable light, we are likely to continue to make favorable associations with that person (or business). If this is true, then communicating a professional image in your first business contact is necessary if you want to continue selling or providing services to the people you meet.

Your professional image improves when you consider these questions:

• Your Product — Is it the very best one that you can make, while remembering what your customer can afford? What can you do to improve your skills? Remember that the marketplace is filled with average, cheaply made goods from large assembly lines. As an entrepreneur, you should ensure that your product is special and valuable; something that you are proud to have your name linked with.

• Your Appearance — Do you get dressed for work? When you are out in the community, does your behavior and appearance tell people that you are serious about success? This doesn't mean that you must go out and spend a great deal on a business wardrobe, but the way you dress and act should at all times reflect your goals, helping you fit in with other professional people.

• Your Work Schedule — Do you have regular working hours set aside to make products, promote and sell, and do the paperwork for your business? How often are interruptions to this schedule allowed? Remember that there is a difference between a true emergency and just taking up the slack for friends and family members who are employed outside of the home. Asking yourself if you would use vacation days from an out-of-the-home job to do a task helps you judge whether it should interrupt your business schedule.

• Your Work Space — Is the area where you work clean, neat and well-organized? Is this space used only for business, allowing you to leave home life behind for interruption-free work sessions? Even if your customers never see your workspace, it is necessary for you to have an area that you can go to separate you from the demands and cares of daily living, to give your full attention to your work.

• Your Price — Have you priced your product or service to cover costs, labor and a margin for profit? Is your price in the same ballpark with others' prices for similar goods/services? Low prices translate into low self-esteem. They signal to the buyer that there is something wrong with what you're offering. Pricing lower than your competitors may anger them, causing you to lose the valuable networking that takes place between professionals.

• Your Network — Do you belong to any guilds, professional organizations, or community organizations (like a Chamber of Commerce) that help you to grow as a business person? Do you regularly make new contacts, and work at keeping old relationships, to keep your foot in the door for sales?

In her book, Women and Home-Based Work, Kathleen Christensen says that one of the three major problems for home-based business people is a loneliness, caused by lack of contact with the outside world, and loss of daily contact with co-workers. She suggests as a solution that "those who run a home-based business can compensate for the lack of office culture by joining business groups, or trade guilds focused on their type of work, and can thus ensure that they have access to the kind of information they need."

The road to greater professionalism is not paved with a binding set of rules and regulations ... it is instead a path you cut for yourself. Starting on a path toward success requires a decision on your part that you will make your business real to yourself and others. It means stepping off the path occasionally and taking a critical look at what you're doing, who is helping you, and if you're really heading toward success or into a dead end. Professionalism makes your business — and the hours you invest — pay for themselves.

Discover The Pleasure Of Roses

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — No other flower generates as much excitement as a rose. It's fragrance and beauty appeals to people of all ages. It's the flower that gardeners raise in many different varieties.

Unfortunately, not only do roses have thorns but also some obstacles in cultivating them.

The Lebanon County Extension Office recently held a workshop on how to handle those obstacles in order to produce the perfect rose. Ginger Pryor, part-time horticulturist for Penn State Extension, and Guy Forry, rose specialist, taught participants how to design, plant, maintain, and prune roses.

Bed designs depend upon time and energy required to maintain it and the space available, Forry said.

He showed slides of the many types of roses available from thousands of varieties. Regardless of the variety chosen, Forry stressed the importance of buying healthy vigorous plants. When purchasing roots or container-grown roses, look for the label (AARS) All American Rose Selection. Roses are also graded according to quality. The top quality is graded #1. In descending order are #1½ and #2. Look for these grades when purchasing bare root, container grown, and pre-packaged plants.

Roses need the following conditions to thrive:

- Light — five to six hours of direct sunlight. Morning sun is essential.
- Air — helps dew and rain dry quickly, which reduces fungus growth. Too much wind can destroy plants.
- Drainage — poor drainage causes death to roses.
- Soil — should be loamy. Improve soil with organic manner.
- Space to expand — don't plant near other plants or under eaves of house.
- Access — plant where you can see the rose everyday and you will take better care of it and enjoy it more.

Rose bushes should be planted where air circulation can dry off the morning dew quickly in order to prevent disease.

When planting, dig hole 15-18-inches deep and mix organic manner in soil. Roses may be grown in containers if planted at least 14-inches deep and 18-inches wide. Must be fed and watered frequently. Outdoor roses need to be watered at least one-inch of water each week.

Pest Control

Several pests feed on rose buds and leaves. These include rose midgets, beetles, spider mites aphids, thips, and leaf hoppers. It is imperative to spray underneath the leaves of the plant in the morning as soon as the dew dries.

Prevent pests by doing the following:

- buy quality plants
- choose disease resistant plants
- water carefully
- destroy diseased parts
- be watchful and remove diseased parts or insects immediately.
- spray carefully

Do not use insecticide sprays for rose petals that are used for eating, drying, or potpourri.

Pruning

In order to promote rebloom, flowers should be removed as soon as they are no longer attractive.

Pruning must be part of any rose grower's routine. Proper pruning contributes to outstanding roses. County extension offices have

Children's Money-Making Project Turns Into Mother's Career

Lemonade Stand Evolves Into Goat Fudge Business

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

NORTH BENTON, OHIO (Portage County) — Sharen O'Brock of North Benton, Ohioi, has been reading Lancaster Farming since she can remember.

It's brought her a lot of valuable tips in the small farm ventures she has enjoyed with her husband, Ken.

Among them, her successful career in making goat milk fudge which has given her good reason to proudly display the sign, "capriculturist," on the side of her barn.

"The story," the petite, bib-overalled, Sharen says, began when her girst child, a daughter, was only one year old. They bought her a goat. Both goats and children began to multiply.

Some years later there were five O'Brock children and 72 goats. "We were giving goat's milk to everything and it all thrived," Sharen remembers. "We had fat veal calves and healthy baby pigs as well as meeting our own family's milk needs."

As the O'Brock children grew into the "lemonade stand," era, they began clamoring for ideas on wayks to make money. It was Ken O'Brock who suggested "Goat Milk Fudge," like his mother used to make.

Using a standard fudge recipe, Sharen substituted goat milk for cow's milk, mixed up some fudge, put it in a cardboard box, and set the kids up in business on the front porch.

The entrepreneurs were so successful, they soon looked for other fudge markets and began carrying their wares to a weekly farmer's auction in nearby Damascus, Ohio.

"When we sold out almost immediately, we thought we really had something going," Sharen remembers. "Next we approached some local gift shops and farmer's markets. We put our fudge in neat white boxes and we were in business."

Today Sharen with children raised and gone, is the sole proprietor, goat milker, fudge maker, bookkeeper, goat breeder, and marketer of her fudge today displayed in boxes depicting goat scenes.

Nearby Berlin Lake provides an excellent summer-based clientele with June, July, August, and September being her peak fudge months. "I sell up to 800 pounds a month in the summer," she admits. Her wares bring $2.25 a half-pound box.

Fudge in flavors of peanut butter or chocolate is made in the neat and spacious kitchen the O'Brocks added to their new home, which has replaced the original . . . the one where the kids sold fudge from the front porch. There are no preservatives, only the goat milk, sugar, oleo, peanut butter or cocoa, vanilla, and salt.

The fudge is shaped on cold marble slabs as Sharen watches her grandchildren from the sunny window that overlooks a delightful play area. Three days a week she finds time to babysit despite her busy schedule.

Ken has worked in nearby Akron at General Tire for more than 30 years and, in addiiton, runs a part-time windmill business.

"But I don't mind doing everything myself," Sharen says. "I find such enjoyment and contentment in milking my goats. It's my quiet time, my time to relax." When the milking is finished, it is stored in a stainless steel, water cooled cooler. Attention to cleanliness is apparent and Sharen has had no trouble passing the Ohio state inspection required to sell her fudge.

She milks seven Alpines and has an additional seven kids and bucks. Sharen oversees all of the breeding, seeking bucks that have strong bloodlines to produce does witih high productivity. Goat milk avcrage is about 2,000 pounds with a special Alpine/Sanneu cross that gives 3,940.

Now that her children have left home, Sharen buys the feed for the animals that was once raised on the farm. "The only thing I add to their diet is comfrey," she says. "That adds a lot of protein and seems to keep by herd healthy."

O'Brock farm animals include chickens (Sharen also sells eggs), the goats, a pot-bellied pig, an aging collie and a Yellow lab pup.

Some people just seem to have more hours in their days than others. Such is the case with Sharen who besides goats, fudge, chickens, a garden, lawn, large house, and grandchildren finds time to lead two 4-H clubs. One is strictly goats while the other has multiple projects.

The O'Brocks' youngest son, David, is part of the International 4-H Youth Exchange and is the 1994 representative to Estonia.

Reading Terminal Market To Host Pa. Dutch Festival

PHILADELPHIA — This year marks the twelfth year that Reading Terminal Market celebrates the traditions, foods and crafts of the Pennsylvania Dutch with a festival scheduled for Thursday, August 4 through Saturday, August 6 from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm.

This year's festival features many of the favorites from past years including: Johnny Claypoole, the hex sign painter, whose work is nationally known and on display at the Philadelphia Zoo as well as the Smithsonian Institute. Not only will hex signs be painted, but a Market window will get a dazzling new look as well with a four-foot painted hex sign.

Amish craftsmen will be featuring wall hangings, toys, wooden clocks, braided rugs, homemade brooms, cedar crafts in all shapes and sizes, old-fashioned wooden wagons, among many other traditional specialties. The Market's beloved Pennsylvania Dutch merchants will be selling homemade ice cream, chicken pot pie, peanut clusters, funnel cakes, donuts, canned and jarred goods using only the freshest produce from their summer crops, and many more delectable items.

The festival will also showcase live farm animals on Saturday (outside, Arch Street sidewalk) including sheep, goats, chickens and a cow, with milking demonstrations by Levi Fisher every hour. Free pony rides will be available for children on Saturday.

Entertainment will abound on Saturday with the Stone Mountain Boys (a gospel group) and a strolling musician.

In keeping with the PA Dutch Festival's tradition, a group of Amish women will once again demonstrate their talent in Center Court (all three days) as they sew the finishing stitches on a handmade quilt which will then be given away as the grand prize on Saturday. Other prizes include: a lunch and dinner for two, ice cream, baked goods, gift baskets, crafts, and gift certificates. To be eligible to win, sign up at the Market beginning Wednesday, July 27 at any of the Amish counters. Drawings for prizes will be held on Saturday, August 6 at 3:00 pm.

Special parking for the PA Dutch Festival will be available on Saturday only, on the north side of Arch Street (between 11th and 12th streets), and on the 12th street underpass between Race and Arch. The Festival is free and open to the public.

Reading Terminal Market is one of the world's largest indoor farmers' markets, offering an unparalleled variety of farm produce in season, Amish foods, ethnic restaurants, and fish, meats, poultry, and flowers from over 70 merchants under one roof. Recently renovated and air-conditioned, this 102 year-old market still functions as the region's only authentic farmers' market. Located at 12th and Filbert Streets, the Market is open Monday through Saturday from 8:00 am to 6:00 pm.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Things change so gradually that we hardly realize the difference between now and our childhood unless we really think about it.

On a Sunday long ago our breakfast could not be prepared until we lit the coal stove by using corn cobs dipped in kerosene and then added wood. We often had salted herring for Sunday breakfast as they were part of our year's supply bought in Northeast, Maryland on Ascension Day.

Then we wound our watches in the morning and we had no ringing telephones to answer. Even cars had differenct names such as Hudson, Studebaker, Pierce-Arrow, and Willys-Knight. My father drove an Overland with running boards, a foot rest in front of the back seat, and a blanket bar. When it rained, we got wet unless he had the celluloid curtains in place.

Even our clothes were different. I wore brown cotton stockings held up with garters fastened to a bodice. One year I had to wear boy's high-topped shoes to school and I was embarrassed. My mother had some of her Sunday dresses made over for me to wear to school.

Remember those candy cigarettes with one end red as though it were lit. And, doctors who made house calls when the children were sick. Our letters carried three-cent stamps and telegrams had words pasted on strips on the paper.

Now you seldom need an ice pick or see a milk bottle made to collect cream on the top. Few swings are hung on front porches and children play in parks instead of big front yards.

One thing that hasn't changed is the joy that children get in catching fireflies at nighttime. Our grandchildren, who visited us recently, ask for a jar to put them in as they have very few of these insects near their home in Georgia.

More than 2,000 varieties of roses are available for the rose gardener.

Pleasure Of Roses

detailed diagrams on how to prune at different seasons. Ask for these free handouts, but here are a few tips.

Summer pruning, generally in July, is the best time to prune the oldest canes while leaving approximately the same amount of new canes to take their place.

The rule of thumb for pruning weak, diseased or small plants, prune the cane down from the spent flower to the first set of leaves (usually three leaflets). On strong plants, prune the rose down to the first set of five leaflets where the stem is at least the size of a pencil.

Careful pruning must be maintained, but be careful because a rose bush that is severely pruned will revert to its original state rather than the hybrid if the grafted part is severed.

Remove injured or thin stems.

Pruning supplies needed:

- pruning shears
- long-handled lopping shears
- small pruning saw
- leather gardening gloves.

Do not use anvil type shears as it crushed stem rather than giving a clean cut.

Keep shears sharp and cut at 45-degree angle. A clean cut heals quickly and reduces the possibility of diseases entering the stems.

If you grow or want to begin to grow roses, check with your county extension office for fact sheets on topics related to growing roses, pruning, pests, and disease control. The information is free and extremely informative.

Tour Master Gardeners' Gardens

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A variety of approaches to Garden Design is featured in the 1994 tour of Penn State Master Gardeners Open House-Garden Tour. The gardens are open to the public free of charge on Saturday, August 6, between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Gardens ranging from annuals, perennials, fruit trees, and roses to water gardens, vegetables and herbs are represented to some degree in each of the gardens. The Master Gardeners will be in their gardens to discuss them and any other gardening questions with visitors.

All homes on the tour will be marked with posters. The gardens may be visited in any order. No smoking please. Respect homeowner's property.

We recommend you wear comfortable walking shoes, clothing and sunhat.

Farm and Home Center
1383 Arcadia Road
Lancaster

(Route 72 North. Arcadia Road is east between Jones Honda and Conestoga Marine.)

Three years ago the Master Gardeners took on the project of revamping and enlarging the beds surrounding and scattered around the Center. The annual garden is changed each year using the latest award-winning plants. The perennial beds have matured and show a variety of seasonal interest.

Lillian and Gordon Campbell
19 Aspen Circle
Elizabethtown

(At square in Elizabethtown go east on High Street to Hickory Lane (across from school) turn left. At second stop sign turn right and short left onto Aspen Circle.)

A real surprise! Only three years old this pie shaped lot overlooking wetlands has been divided into islands of interest. Each island has trees, annuals, perennials, herbs and vegetables. There is a pond under a tree and a path through one island. Also a greenhouse and nursery and plants too numerous to mention. Full of great ideas and a must if you are starting from scratch.

Harry and Harriet Collins
Buchanan Park Rose Garden
Buchanan Avenue
Lancaster

(Located between Race Ave. and College Ave., facing Buchanan Ave.)

In 1951, a member of the Men's Garden Club was inspired to create a garden for the community to enjoy. Thus the rose garden was established. The Men's Garden Club maintained the roses for many years, but now Mr. Collins and his wife, along with occasional volunteers provide the care and maintenance. Mr. Collinsw will provide tips on rose culture, demonstrate pruning, and point out varieties of special interest.

Nancy Gingrich
2896 Graystone Road
East Petersburg

(East on State Street from East Petersburg, merges into Graystone Road.)

Perennial gardening under old shade is a must here. An old walled barn foundation and forebay is the backdrop for colorful perennial borders. Also featured is an iron Victorian fountain against the woods, a patio, orchard and vegetable garden and a formal boxwood garden with an old sundial.

Eric and Gertrude Habegger
33 Wolf Road
Akron

(From Lancaster, 272 North to light in Akron (Main St.). Left at Main, 5/10 mile to Wolf, turn right.)

Colorful perennials and annuals provide a cheerful greeting at the street. Behind the house, Mr. Habegger, a skilled fruit tree grafter, has created an orchard yielding more than 120 varieties of apples, pears, apricots and plums. A special feature in the orchard is espaliered fruit trees in varying stages of growth. Mrs. Habegger helps with the harvesting, and cans and freezes the produce.

Alex and Adeline Henderson

Lancaster

This lovely wooded setting features a variety of gardens. Among the special plantings in the garden are 15 varieties of native fern, 12 types of hosta, and more than 35 kinds of daylilies. (North on 272 about 2.5 miles north of U.S. Route 322 at Ephrata. Left on Wabash Road about 1/2 mile. Two story white house with green shutters on right.)

His branches were bare and plain whereas the pine tree was decorated with tinsel and glitter. The apple tree complained to God and God said to the apple tree that he would give the tree a special gift. Betsy doesn't remember the remainder of the story, but God ended up putting a Christmas star in the heart of each apple. If you cut an apple crosswise, you will find a perfectly shaped five-point star in the heart of the apple. Betsy would like to have the complete story of how the star came to appear in the center of the apple.

CHORE-TIME ...nobody knows more about feeding

Both Models C2 (above) and H2 (left) start chicks when lowered to floor, finish birds when raised up.

The Right Choice in broiler feeders

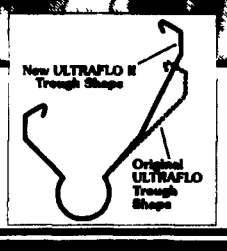
Feed broilers and pullets your way! As the world leader in poultry feeding systems, Chore-Time offers you the best choices in feeders. You will love what our newest feeders —the Model C2™ and Model H2™—do for you.

Features include (1) labor-saving Patented Feed Windows that open to let chicks eat from day one—without additional feed on paper or "lids", (2) feed-saving features like easy feed adjustment settings, and (3) cost-saving all-plastic designs with Chore-Time Warranty.

Pick a Chore-Time feeding system—including our rugged feed bins and Genuine Chore-Time FLEX-AUGER® Feed Delivery System, plus ventilation—and you know you've made the Right Choice—because it's from Chore-Time, the leader!

CHORE-TIME EQUIPMENT
Milford, Indiana

New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right). ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.



The Right Choice in cage feeders

Chore-Time's popular ULTRAFLO® Cage Feeding System is now even more outstanding! We've developed and tested the second generation of ULTRAFLO feeders and named it the ULTRAFLO® II.

ULTRAFLO II offers you even greater reliability, durability, and outstanding feed-saving performance—up to 1 gram of feed per bird per day—over the original ULTRAFLO. And even the original ULTRAFLO was beating our competitors in feed savings!

So, join the cage feeding leader. Contact us today. Find out how Chore-Time and ULTRAFLO II can help you be a leader, too!

THE SELENIUM ISSUE

The Problem

Eight years ago, a report described high mortality rates in ducks near the Kesterson Reservoir in the San Joaquin Valley of California.

Excess selenium was apparently responsible for the deaths and poor reproductive rates among these water fowl. Where did the selenium come from?

It occurred naturally in the area, and was probably magnified from the runoff of irrigation water.

The Blame

Not long after the problem was discovered, environmental groups began pointing fingers at the livestock industry. And so the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) looked into the issue, asking questions, such as: In what form does selenium come out of the animal? How does it move in the soil and effluent? Where does it go in water sheds?

Hearing unsatisfactory answers, the FDA decided that the livestock industry was feeding too much selenium. Most sensible individuals would struggle to make the connection between the dead ducks in an area of high selenium concentration and the minuscule amounts (.3 ppm supplemental) we feed to livestock. Yet the FDA announced September 13, 1993 that maximum supplemental selenium in the livestock feeds would have to be reduced from .3 ppm to .1 ppm (diets for weanling pigs would remain at .3 ppm, and .2 ppm for turkeys). The new regulation went into effect immediately but will not be enforced for one year (September 13, 1994) to allow existing stocks of mineral mixes to be depleted.

The Defense

In the 10 months following the announcement of reduced selenium, there has been a lot of ruckus. Two highly respected organizations, the American Feed Industry Association (AFIA) and the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology (CAST), have criticized the decision. Neither have a economic interest in whether we feed any selenium at all, but both organizations have rightfully pointed out that just as ducks die from too much selenium, so do livestock from not enough.

In a recent CAST report, it was stated, "No scientific evidence or logic suggests that reducing supplementary selenium from .3 ppm to .1 ppm in livestock diets will reduce selenium in regions of the U.S. in which an excess is present." The report also pointed out that of the total amount of selenium released in the U.S. annually from natural and commercial sources, the livestock industry contributes less than .3 percent.

The Nature Of Selenium

Selenium occurs just about everywhere, but concentrations are low in the Northeast, the Pacific Northwest, and Southeast.

It's absolutely vital to pigs so they can make a selenium-containing enzyme called glutathione peroxidase. This enzyme prevents the oxidation and destruction of cell membranes. In addition, selenium is important in antibody production and cell-mediated immune function.

Selenium more or less works in concert with vitamin E. Vitamin E prevents the formation of dangerous oxidizing agents in the body. Selenium plays a role in destroying the oxidizing agents if they do form.

Like any essential element, selenium is important. But unlike other elements, there isn't much room for error. A dietary level of only 5 ppm is toxic to the pig. Concentrations of 5-10 ppm can lead to anorexia, hair loss, fatty infiltration of the liver, degenerative changes in the liver, edema, and, under chronic conditions, spinal poliomalacia. A high level, even for a short time, may cause irreversible damage.

In 1974, the livestock industry was permitted to add .1 ppm of selenium. In 1982, the FDA increased the maximum supplemental level to .3 ppm for pigs up to 44 pounds. In 1987, the FDA increased the level to .3 ppm for all pigs.

The important question debated now is how much is enough? The National Research Council (1988 swine edition) lists the followng requirements:

Selenium Requirements for Swine (NRC 1988)

Weight Class, lb	Requirement, ppm
2-11	.30
11-22	.30
22-44	.25
44-110	.15
110-242	.10
gestation	.15
lactation	.15

Two things to keep in mind with this table. First, the amounts of selenium listed are total amounts — that is, what occurs naturally in the corn, soybean meal, etc. plus what is supplemented from the premix. Corn and soybean meal will add another .10 ppm (for grower pigs and larger), bringing the total to roughly .20 ppm.

So have we got a problem with the new rule? Certainly not with the starter pigs — supplemental selenium levels for that phase of production remains at .3 ppm. But for older pigs we might, because of the second important issue in the table.

There is no margin of safety. Fast growing pigs and heavy-milking sows, many researchers argue, may be cut a little short. But even at the new levels, finding reports of any obvious deficiency problems in the literature is difficult.

The Worst Case

If supplemental selenium levels are to be .3 ppm for starter pigs, and .1 ppm for older pigs, what will happen?

In most operations, nothing. A few producers with high performing herds may see some deficiency signs — unthriftiness and pale skeletal and heart muscle upon post-mortem exam. If producers suspect problems are due to low dietary selenium, injectable selenium/vitamin E can be prescribed by a veterinarian. Or ingredients with naturally high selenium (alfalfa meal, fish meal, meat and bone meal, corn distiller's) could be included in the diet.

The Best Case

For the FDA to suggest that we need to reduce the selenium in swine diets from a tiny amount to an even tinier amount because ducks can't live in a seleniferous area is, in my opinion, almost silly. The list of items that are vital to life, but cause problems when consumed in excess, would fill this publication. Oxygen and water are just two examples.

Let's hope that logic and common sense will prevail and that the FDA will soon reverse their decision to lower selenium levels.

BROILER BREEDER MANAGEMENT

H. S. Siegel, Professor
Poultry Science

The best economic returns from broiler breeder hens is accomplished by maximizing the number of vigorous chicks hatched per hen in each production cycle.

To accomplish this objective, it is desirable to bring birds into sexual maturity at as early an age as hatchable eggs can be produced. However, the beginning of production by broiler pullets depends upon them reaching a certain threshold body weight at a specific age, which, in turn, depend on lighting schedules during the rearing period and on feed management. Therefore, controlling lighting and feeding schedules for pullets before they begin to lay is important.

Idris and Robbins (Poultry Science 73:603, 1994) conducted four experiments that provide information on the optimum age for broiler breeders to begin egg production and the management methods needed to attain sexual maturity at this age. Their results indicate that egg production by commercial broiler breeders will be optimum when they begin to lay at 24 weeks of age. But management methods to achieve this target age will differ according to whether the pullets are reared, up to 18 weeks of age, in conventional (natural daylength) or in "short-day" (8 hour) rearing systems. The latter requires "black-out" housing.

The experiments showed that pullets reared under a short-day system will begin to lay at 24 weeks if light stimulation is initiated at 18 weeks and feed stimulation is initiated not later than 24 weeks of age. Pre-lay feed stimulation consisted of abruptly changing from restricted every-other-day feeding of a grower diet to a daily allowance of 0.4 lb/hen/day of a breeder diet (1250 kcal/pound; 17 percent crude protein). For pullets reared in housing with natural daylength to commence laying at 24 weeks of age, feed stimulation should be initiated at 24 weeks and photostimulation begun at 18 weeks of age.

The results show that for pullets reared in natural daylength, feed stimulation is the key factor, whereas for pullets reared in short-light situations, photostimulation is the key factor.

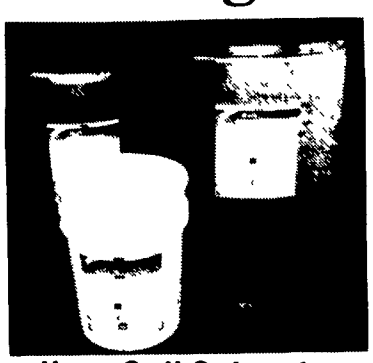
Surge Introduces Chlorinated Detergent

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Dairy producers can now improve the quality of milk system cleaning with QuikSolve, a new concentrated, highly soluble C.I.P. detergent available from Surge dealers.



New QuikSolve from Surge is an extremely soluble powdered detergent that offers several advantages for C.I.P. applications in pipelines and milk tanks.

QuikSolve contains powerful alkaline components and anticorrosive agents that quickly remove milk fats and proteins from the pipeline, which reduces the potential for milk soil build-up and high bacteria counts. Its powdered detergent formulation is extremely soluble even in cold water, low-turbulence and other conditions that make dissolving difficult. Anticaking agents inhibit clumping and decrease the accumulation of the detergent in wash units or at the bottom of wash vats.

QuikSolve is also cost-effective and has low environmental impact. At a use rate of one ounce for every three gallons of water, its cost per detergent cycle is low. QuikSolve contains an organic chlorine that is biodegradable and dissipates in sanitary systems.

For more information, contact your local Surge dealer or write to Surge QuikSolve, Babson Bros. Co., 1354 Enterprise Drive, Romeoville, Il 60441.

Hose Protectors Available From Ford New Holland

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Prevent worn out hydraulic hoses and fuel lines before wear occurs by installing EPHA Hose Protectors from Ford New Holland.

EPHA hose protectors come in two convenient sizes, 6 inch and 8 inch, and are installed on new hoses or wiring with three zip-ties to prevent damage at points of contact. Made of durable thermoplastic rubber, the hose protectors perform well as temperatures from -40 to 430 F and serve as protective shields for hoses, air lines, wiring, and cables.

Prevent worn out hydraulic hoses and fuel and oil lines before wear occurs by installing EPHA Hose Protectors from Ford New Holland.

The three protective grooves on the hose protector keep the fasteners from slipping off and allowing the protector to shift away from the wear point. Installation takes just minutes. The protectors are also impervious to solvents, oils, grease, gasoline, and other engine chemicals.

For more information, contact your local Ford New Holland dealership.

Nutrition Key To Curbing BRD

BENKELMAN, Neb. — Cattle producers moving animals into a feedlot situation could benefit from paying particular attention to animal nutrition as an aid in reducing stress of an animal.

Cattle producers know that an animal that is weak in nutrition will be more susceptible to diseases, particularly the profit-cutting disease, bovine respiratory disease (BRD).

Economic effects of BRD can be seen in death losses, as well as significant costs in lost performance, labor, and medication costs.

Producers should be mindful that stress associated with normal production practices such as branding, weaning, transporting, and comingling, as well as uncontrollable factors like changing of weather patterns, or treating viral and bacterial infections, all play a role in weakening a calf's immune system.

Veterinarians at a recent BRD roundtable discussion, co-sponsored by American Cyanamid Company and Agri Practice, point to nutrition as one way to attack BRD.

"As animals go through situations that inherently raise their nutritional requirements for protein, energy, water and trace minerals, producers are asking the animal to also withstand stress, which usually depresses feed intake," said Tom Noffsinger, DVM, Benkelman, Neb. "It's difficult for the animal to do. That's why anything that can be done to increase feed intake or increase the quality of nutrition at stressful times is a long-term benefit to the animal."

Feed additives can serve two purposes in aiding an animal weather the stressful periods. Some products provide a therapeutic remedy to respiratory diseases, as well as help maintain performance of the animal.

Feedlot managers look to feed additives as a tool in managing stress and, possibly more importantly, as a method of treating several head of cattle at one time.

RACINE, Wis. — "If farmers know more about why farming is hazardous, they can take appropriate steps to reduce their risks," said Steve Burdette, Case Corporation manager, product safety. "That's why we're offering Safety in the Farm Workplace, a brochure to help farmers and organizations involved in farm safety raise awareness of safety hazards and promote safe work practices."

Developed by the editors of Farm Forum, a national agricultural magazine sponsored by Case IH dealers, the eight-page color brochure presents safety information in an attractive, easy-to-read format. Burdette explained that, in researching the brochure, Farm Forum editors analyzed reports of serious and fatal farm accidents, divided them by type — including tractors, falls, silos, electrical and PTO shafts — and produced brief safety guidelines for preventing each type of accident.

The brochure, which also includes a safety quiz and helpful reference information, is availabale through participating Case IH dealers

PRV Vaccine For Young Pigs

SIOUX CENTER, Iowa — Early protection against pseudorabies is the promise of Optivac-gi® from NOBL laboratories.

The vaccine is a high-titered naturally gene-deleted (complete gI) modified live virus pseudorabies vaccine derived from the K-61 Bartha strain.

With the introduction of Optivac-gi, NOBL brings to the United States one of the most successful PRV vaccines used in Europe.

Younger pigs are easier to vaccinate, and Optivac can be used in pigs as young as one day of age.

Producers have the option of giving the vaccine intramuscularly (IM) or intranasally (IN). Intranasal protects better in the face of maternal antibodies often encountered in very young pigs.

Optivac-gi is available from veterinarians.

Gene Mapping Is Guide To The Future

CHICAGO, Ill. — Meat composition and quality could be greatly affected in the future by advances the industry makes in gene mapping, experts told meat scientists at a session of the Reciprocal Meat Conference (RMC) in University Park, Pa. These advances are happening in human and animal gene mapping research being conducted around the world.

The RMC was sponsored by the American Meat Science Association (AMSA) in cooperation with the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Host for the conference was the Pennsylvania State University.

Gene mapping is a technology that allows researchers to closely examine and analyze DNA. In people, gene mapping can be important in disease prevention by identifying the "who" before the onset of disease.

While working for different ends, technological efforts in human gene mapping have helped pave the way for animal gene mapping research being conducted by the U.S. government and academia. Meat animal gene mapping would allow the meat industry to identify animals with the genetic potential to produce offspring with carcass traits — such as tenderness or leanness — that are in demand in the marketplace.

According to Craig W. Beattie, Ph.D., of the Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center (MARC) in Clay Center, Neb., the research is beneficial if it can "increase the accuracy of prediction of breeding values and allow for prediction of breeding values for traits in which data are difficult to obtain." Beattie said research in this area at MARC started in January 1992, and could be done by the end of 1994.

Jeremy Taylor, Ph.D., said checkoff-funded research begin conducted at Texas A&M University is well on the way to both locating and cloning a number of genes in cattle. The project, being coordinated through the Meat Board, is utilizing 32 Angus/Brahman back-cross families to look for associations between gene markers and traits influencing carcass merit.

"We have the capability to have a thousand (markers) by the end of the year," said Taylor, leader of the animal genetics group at Texas A&M. "The framework is there for us."

Gene mapping is by no means simple, the session participants agreed. For example, it took 10 years to map the human gene for Huntington's disease once it had been identified.

But session coordinator Jeff Savell, Ph.D., professor of animal science at Texas A&M University, said the process is worth it. "As we move into the 21st century, meat science is going to be impacted by the efforts that are going on in today's gene mapping projects," he said.

Meat: Is It As Safe As Can Be?

CHICAGO, Ill. — While it sounds comprehensive, zero tolerance of contaminations on meat carcasses probably isn't the best answer to making meat safer. That was the word from a panel discussion at the 47th Annual Reciprocal Meat Conference (RMC) last month.

The RMC, hosted by Pennsylvania State University, was sponsoredc by the American Meat Science Association in cooperation with the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Safety experts from academia, foodservice, perharvest production, and regulatory agencies met in University Park, last month.

In a session on food safety and muscle foods inspection, speakers concluded that an industry-wide total quality management proogram would be more efficient than the 1993 federal zero tolerance regulation that requires removal of al contaminants, regardless of size, from the carcass.

"As we have attempted to monitor the pathogen count, zero tolerance isn't working as well as we would like for it to work, and in fact we aren't reducing the pathogen content," said panel discussion leader Gary Smith, professor of meat science at Colorado State University.

Advanced methods of removing contaminants, such as the Meat Board-funded carcass studies being conducted at plants throughout the country, are demonstrating success in practical applications. But even if zero pathogens existed on the outside of carcasses, several of the panelists said that pathogens could still exist.

"Essentially, if you're testing to keep (pathogens) out of the system, it's going to eventually come back and bite you," said William Sischo, assistant professor of veterinary science at Pennsylvania State University. "No matter how thorough your test, something will eventually work its way through."

Instead of massive testing, Sischo and Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) assistant administrator Richard Carnevale suggested extending Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP) programs to the farms, monitoring and quarantining livestock before they end up at the packing plant.

A method of total quality management, HACCP originally emphasized monitoring production in processor. plants. Extending HACCP to the farms, ranches and feeding sites would increase quality at every subsequent point in meat production, Sischo said.

"We're after pathogen reduction, not pathogen elimination," Carnevale said. "The idea of implementing HACCP on the farm is just that. It's just trying to identify practices that decrease the possibility of pathogens making it into the packing plant."

An across-the-industry quality management program is the best solution, agreed Smith.

"We have to have a collective effort of everyone who can and will be concerned to make sure that our products are indeed safe," he said.

Bob Harrington, director of technical services for the National Restaurant Association, said he welcomed earlier quality assurance from meat producers. The foodservice industry took most of the criticism during the 1993 E. coli scare because of Jack in the Box's cooking practices. Thorough cooking kills pathogens, but Harrington says that isn't as easy a directive as it sounds.

"We'be got a problem in our industry because we have to respond to multiple masters," he said. "We have to ultimately do what our customers say they want. And people are coming back to rare meat."

By implementing HACCP standards early, everyone's job becomes a little easier, Harrington said.

Smith said in some instances, advanced ways of testing meat make a perfectly risk-free food supply an impossible goal.

"God put pesticides inside plants to fight off the things that might come along and chew off their roots or limbs or leaves. And if we eat food, we're going to get those naturally occurring toxins," he said. Quoting a study done by Dr. Bruce Ames, a University of Californis/Berkley researcher, Smith said naturally occurring carcinogens represent about 1,500 milligrams per day in our daily diet. Synthetic drug residues account for 0.019 milligrams. Neither exposure presents a serious risk of cancer, Smith said.

Rep. Smith States Objections

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Republican chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee recently said he objects to certain proposed changes in regulations governing farm use of water from the Susquehanna River Basin.

Specifically, York County Rep. Bruce Smith said he disagrees with a proposal developed by the Susquehanna River Basin Commission to impose fees on farmers for agricultural use of water from the river and the waters of the basin.

The commission is proposing the implementation of fees for agricultural water use which exceeds 20,000 gallons per day, as well as application and monitoring fees.

"This proposal would be a definite financial hardship for many farmers who are already financially hard-pressed. Under this proposal, farmers would be subject to unreasonable fees ranging from $850 to $13,500 in the first year," Smith said.

The commission is an autonomous agency formed in 1970 by a compact between Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York and the federal government. It is currently in the process of reorganizing and revising regulations governing projects in the river basin.

Smith agreed that the commission's regulations require updating, but urged the panel to extend its comment period in order to provide farmers with more time to review the proposed changes and send comments. The comment deadline is Aug. 1.

"It is unfortunate that the commission chose the busiest time of a farmer's year to seek comment on proposals which will initiate unexpected financial disadvantage on the agricultural community," he said. Smith recommended the comment period be extended into the winter months.

JAMESWAY DIRECT XPRESS SYSTEM

NEW BELT FEEDERS & CONVEYORS

Big Capacity Delivery... With All The Advantages Of Dependable, Efficient, Low Profile Direct Drive Design!

That's what farmers really appreciate about the new Jamesway family of Direct XPress Feeders and Conveyors. All models feature a dependable and efficient heavy duty industrial drive, with enclosed oil bath and standard 1, 2 or 3 HP C-faced motors. Our direct drive design eliminates pulleys, jackshafts, sprockets, chains, V-belts and shields. The low profile motor and drive can be mounted on either side for added installation versatility.

The Direct XPress family includes
- DXF 1400 - Single or Divided Lot 14" - Wide Belt Feeder 180' Maximum Length
- DXC 1400 - 14" - Wide Belt Conveyor 180' Maximum Length
- DXC 1800 - 18" - Wide Belt Conveyor 180' Maximum Length
- DXC 2400 - 24" - Wide Belt Conveyor 124' Maximum Length

"X" Sides Are Standard
All Direct XPress System models feature heavy 16-gauge weather resistant galvanized steel sides in 2-1/2', 5' and 10' sections. We call them "X" sides because they are "X tra" strong and will span 20' between supports. And they are built to last and will stay looking good "X tra" long!

Do It Your Way!
Match your feeding layout and requirements with reversible elevating conveyors, inclines and declines without sacrificing capacity, speed and uniform delivery. All inclines and declines are infinitely adjustable up to 30 degrees elevation for textured belt and up to 15 degrees elevation for smooth belt.

Tough 1/8" thick polyester belt with PVC covering and dependable stainless steel industrial splice is a year round performer and flexes in sub-zero weather. Choice of smooth or textured belt for conveyors in 14", 18" and 24" widths. Belt speed is 230 feet per minute.

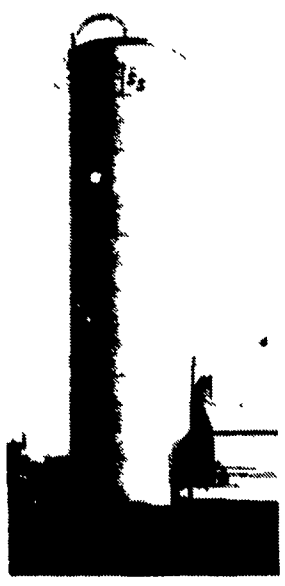
CONSIDER THE MANY CONCRETE ADVANTAGES!
"A GOOD JULY RAIN GROWS A LOT OF GRAIN!"
With The Prospect Of A Good Corn Crop, It's Time For Many Producers To Make Decisions Concerning Storage.



16'x68'
about 10,000 bu. cap.
Shelled Corn
Poured Concrete
No Used Silos!
No Rebuilt Silos!
No Preowned Silos!!

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Let's discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

FOR SALE
20 North County Cheviot ewes.

This is one of the best North County herds in this part of the country. Majority are '89 & '92 births.

The Canadian government has been buying rams and keeping them in quarantine for the required period, then selling the offspring so that these sheep are from many generations of the best that Scotland has to offer.

Due to my age, must sell after 25 years of breeding near imported rams.

A LOAD OF MIRACLE BREWERS WET GRAINS . . .LOADS MORE MILK

Have you considered brewers wet grains to give your herd's production a boost? Brewers wet grains from Miracle Feeds are an excellent protein and energy source. They can readily make up to 20-30% of the ration's dry matter. Combined with McNess vitamin and minerals they can provide a very efficient rumen bypass way to feed.

Researchers estimate that between 45-55% of brewers wet grains' protein escapes rumen degradation compared to only 25-30% for soybean meal. This bypass protein is more efficiently digested and absorbed in the cow's small intestine.

For more information on the use of brewers wet grains and other by-products, plus McNess premixes, call toll-free 800-888-0230.

Maintain Wheat Quality, Producers Advised

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Since moisture contributes to the deterioration of stored grain, Richard Troutman, of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), reminds farmers to harvest their wheat as dry as possible.

"To maintain the quality of the wheat crop and eligibility for price support loans, we encourage farmers to follow proper storage and handling procedures," Troutman said.

He said wheat placed in storage with a high moisture content will create an environment for infestation and cause deterioration in stored grain. Fungal spores can then be distributed throughout the grain by migrating insects.

"Older crop grain is the primary source of insects that infest newly-harvested grain, and unless steps are taken to prevent cross-over infestation, several generations of insects could develop in summer-harvested wheat before cold weather temperatures restrict development," Troutman said.

The ASCS official said small residues of grain in conveyors, trucks, and harvesters should be removed before harvest to prevent newly-harvested wheat from becoming contaminated.

Mid-Atlantic Soybean Meeting In Landisville

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association will hold its 1994 summer members meeting Tuesday, Aug. 9, at Penn State University's southeast research farm near Landisville.

As many as 100 farmers and agribusiness representatives from the four states represented by the association — Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania — are expected to attend.

Although billed as a "members" meeting, MASA officials emphasized that non-member farmers and agribusinessmen and women are cordially invited to attend. They are asked only to telephone the association offices at (410) 742-9500 for reservations.

The event will convene with a catered "Dutch Country" picnic. A business meeting and a tour of soybean research plots at the farm will follow.

The cost of the luncheon and post-tour refreshments will be $15 per person, member and nonmember alike. Payment may be made at the meeting.

The guest speaker will be Mike Rohan, executive director for research, industry and consumer information for the American Soybean Association. He will discuss the increasing opportunities for the domestic marketing of U.S. soybeans, particularly through the continuing development of new uses for the crop.

Members also will elect new directors and officers for 1994-'95. The current officers are Patrick Boova, a commodities broker in Bala Cynwd, Pa., president; Douglas Corey of Seaford, Del., vice president; Bill Bradley of Salisbury, Md., treasurer; and Jerry Kennedy, MASA's executive director, secretary.

Editors Say Food Safety Of Increasing Importance

DES MOINES, Iowa — Seven out of 10 newspaper editors from throughout the country believe that Americans view food safety as more important than they did a year ago, according to a recent poll commissioned by CMF&Z Public Relations, a Young & Rubicam affiliate.

The study found that nearly all (97 percent) of the survey respondents think food safety is an important issue with the American public. This is virtually the same response as received when the study was conducted for the first time in 1993. In addition, the majority of editors (70 percent) responded that they believed the public views food safety as more important than a year ago.

Editors cited the E.coli deaths of the previous year, coupled with publicity given the hormone BST and heavy television coverage of various food safety issues as reasons the public's interest has increased in the past year.

"This information tells us that food safety issues will continue to receive a high level of public and media interest," said Carol Bodensteiner, president of CMF&Z Public Relations. "The food industry needs to understand this and be even more pro-active in providing information to help educate the public about the impact of new technology and efforts taken to safeguard the food supply."

The survey, conducted in May of 1994, questioned editors who cover food safety issues for the top 1,585 newspapers in the United States. With a response rate of nearly 10 percent (157 editors), this sample yields total results with a margin of no greater than ±8 percentage points (at the 95 percent confidence level).

"The media keep a finger on the pulse of public opinion," said Bodensteiner. "As a result, they offer a credible gauge of public interest in food safety issues. Simultaneously, the American people receive much of their information about food safety from the media. So, we questioned both the editors' perception of the public's knowledge level of food safety as well as the media's sources of information on food safety."

According to Bodensteiner, the 1994 survey was expanded to explore who editors believe the public holds responsible for food safety in the United States, whether or not the public believes the food delivery system works, and the effectiveness of various groups in ensuring a safe food supply. Additional survey highlights include:

• How well informed is the American public on food safety issues? The editors perceive the public as only average in their knowledge of food safety issues. Two-thirds of the editors (68 percent) say the public is somewhat informed and 28 percent say the public is not very informed.

• How concerned is the public about key food safety issues? The editors ranked seven food safety issues in terms of level of concern held by the public. They ranked bacteria in food, food handling, and pesticides in food as issues of the greatest concern to the public. Hormones and drug residues in food were ranked of moderate concern. Genetic engineering and irradiation of food were seen as being of the least concern.

• Who is responsible for safety of the U.S. food supply? Editors responding to the survey said the public would put the heaviest responsibility on the U.S government (88 percent) with food processors ranking second (73 percent). Supermarkets and producers were significantly further down the list at 62 and 61 percent, respectively. Probably not surprisingly, editors believe consumers would see themselves as least responsible.

• Does the food delivery system work when it comes to delivering a safe food supply? Six in 10 editors responding said the public would agree somewhat with this statement. None would disagree. Only 8 percent indicated the public would strongly agree.

• How are various groups doing in terms of ensuring a safe food supply? In assessing the track record of producers, food processors, government agencies and consumers, very few editors were willing to say any of these groups was doing an excellent job of ensuring a safe food supply although they were more likely to say that consumers (38 percent) and food producers (35 percent) were doing a good or excellent job. The editors were more likely to say the government (42 percent) and food processors (36 percent) were doing only a fair or poor job.

• Who are the best communicators with media on food safety issues? The editors gave the award for best communicators to government agencies and consumer groups with 60 percent and 54 percent, respectively, saying they communicated well. Food processor groups receiving nods from only 20 percent, and food manufacturers with 36 percent, ranked the lowest in terms of being gauged best communicators by editors. Editors commented that those who sent them the most information were acknowledged as best communicators. Additionally, the editors felt that government agencies and universities were the most credible sources.

• Whose information is most useful to the media in a food controversy? Government agencies and universities received the highest scores with 77 percent each. The least useful sources of information the editors cited were food processor groups (22 percent), food manufacturers (30 percent), and agricultural commodity groups (32 percent). Editors commented that the latter groups' information was frequently seen as biased.

• How familiar are the media with Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP)? Overwhelmingly, the editors (91 percent) were unfamiliar with these new operational standards which the U.S. government is phasing into food production systems.

• Who covers food safety issues? As was indicated in the 1993 study, the "food safety beat" is covered by food editors (95 percent), according to the survey. Other topics covered by editors who cover food safety issues are health (80 percent) and lifestyle (79 percent). Subjects least likely to be covered by editors who also cover food safety issues are science and technology (21 percent), business (26 percent), and agriculture (34 percent).

According to CMF&Z officials, this information provides useful insight to the food industry that can assist future food safety communications efforts.

The survey reinforced the findings of the 1993 survey citing bacteria and pesticides in food and food handling as of most concern to the public. However, while irradiation and genetic engineering were ranked of greater concern in 1993, these were not seen as of great concern in 1994.

"These findings on food safety issues of concern, coupled with the fact that editors perceive the public as placing the greatest responsibility for food safety on the government and food processors, would indicate that there will be a close eye kept on developing procedures for controlling problems such as the E.coli outbreak," said Bodensteiner.

"But at the same time, the survey revealed that editors were not familiar with the technology that much of the new food safety and risk evaluation is based upon. When questioned about their familiarity with the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP) principles, nearly 91 percent of the editors responded that they were unfamiliar with HACCP.

"Since the public holds the government chiefly responsible for the safety of the food supply, these results would indicate the government and the food industry need to step up their efforts to inform and educate the public on HACCP principles. It adds up to a good 'sound science' story to tell, and one that could build consumer confidence in the food supply.

"Also, we're seeing that as expanded education efforts are undertaken, the public is becoming more comfortable with new technology such as irradiation," Bodensteiner said. "With enough accurate information, the public sees the correlation between the technology and a safe food supply."

Responding to the survey, the media indicated that those organizations who sent them the most information — government and consumer groups — were often seen as the most useful. The survey results would indicate that while food processors and producer groups have increased their efforts to provide information to the media, by comparison, they are still not seen as proactive enough by the media.

In addition, the survey looked at which group's information was seen as most useful by the media during a food controversy. The government and universities were seen as the most useful. This supports the results of the 1993 study, which cited government agencies as the most credible information sources.

"This information reinforces the importance of including third-party resources when presenting food safety information to the media," said Bodensteiner. "It also underscores the need for those involved in the food industry to be consistent and persistent in providing information to the media. Relationships with the media ned to be built over time and information provided on a regular basis so that when a food controversy occurs, the media will know to whom they can look for reliable information.

"The survey also confirms that food safety continues to be 'incident driven' in the media. That is, food 'scares' and events such as the introduction of new technologies tend to drive media coverage of food safety stories. This means that both the food industry and government must be well prepared and skilled in crisis communications, and must know how to use times of heightened attention to educate.

"The American public and the food industry will both benefit from an improved communications effort," Bodensteiner said.

Bucks Hires Management Specialist

NEW BRITAIN (Bucks Co.) — Kristine Ramsey has recently been hired by the Bucks County Conservation District to work with farmers on developing nutrient management plans.

In addition, Ramsey will be working on five demonstration projects in the county. Pennsylvania's 319 program will provide cost-share funding.

Through these demonstration projects, Ramsey intends to show the water quality benefits of streambank fencing, stabilized stream crossings for livestock and barnyard runoff control. She will also address proper utilization of nutrients from manure for field crops.

Kris Ramsey, left, reviews options for nutrient management plan with farm owner/operator Walter Detweiler.

She will be working closely with the extension service and Soil Conservation Service to develop an overall nutrient management program for farms. Ramsey is a native of Bucks County, residing in Perkasie. She is a recent graduate of Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture, with a bachelor's in agronomy and environmental science.

Bucks County farmers interested in developing nutrient management plans or participating in demonstration projects should contact Ramsey at the Soil Conservation Office at (215) 822-5840.

New Faces In Wayne County Extension Office

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Wayne County Cooperative Extension is pleased to announce the addition of two new part-time employees.

Lisa Olver and David Nebzydoski began work on July 1 as 4-H summer assistants. They will be assisting youth and adults with 4-H program activities throughout the summer.

4-H club leaders and members are encouraged to contact Dave or Lisa with questions about their projects or to request them to attend club meetings or project tours.

Lisa Olver is the daughter of Roger and Carole Olver. She will be starting her senior year at Penn State University this fall, where she is studying dairy and animal science. At Penn State, she is a Little Sister at Delta Theta Sigma Fraternity and is also a member of the Coaly Agricultural Honor Society and the Block and Bridle Club. When Lisa graduates in May, she hopes to begin work as a dairy nutrition consultant.

Lisa grew up on a 50-cow dairy farm in Wayne County. As a result, agriculture has always been a major part of her life. She showed market Steers in 4-H for two years and showed Herford heifers in Penn State's Little International Livestock Exposition. Lisa is trying out for Penn State's Dairy Judging Team.

This summer, Lisa will be helping out with the beef show at the Wayne County Fair and many other 4-H activities. She will be happy to speak to any 4-H club or group about their beef projects or other topics. Lisa hopes to make many new friends this summer and is looking forward to another successful Wayne County Fair.

David Nebzydoski is from Pleasant Mount. His parents are Dr. Henry and Jean Nebzydoski. David will be a senior at the University of Scranton this fall, majoring in biology.

David brings with him seven years of experience in the 4-H program, having completed projects in capons, swine, and beef. He believes his swine projects have had the most influence on him and hopes his experience will be of value to the Wayne County 4-H'ers and youth.

Contact Lisa or Dave at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension, 925 Court Street, (717) 253-5970, ext. 239.

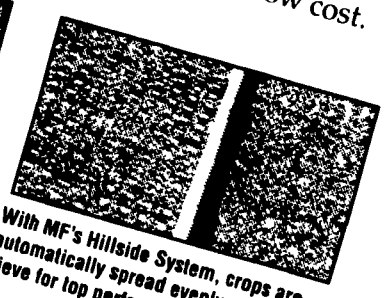
Level your fields without leveling your combine.

The brilliantly simple Dynamic Hillside Compensation System, optional on MF 8400 conventional combines, gives you "flat land" performance on slopes up to 20 degrees. All automatically. And all at a surprisingly low cost. Stop in today for all the details.

Without Hillside System, crops overload the lower side of the sieve, causing high losses and low sample quality.



With MF's Hillside System, crops are automatically spread evenly across the sieve for top performance.

Dairy of Distinction Supplement to Lancaster Farming, Saturday, July 30, 1994

Judy and Richard Trinca and herdsman Darl Johnstonbaugh are shown on the lawn of their new Dairy of Distinction farm,located east of Rebersburg in Centre County. Pulled out to represent the beautiful Trinca registered Holstein herd is Trincas' Royalty Crystal, VG-87 with milk records to 4y 29,223m 916f 891p and now has milked 142 lbs. per day. The herd includes several excellent and many very good cows, all homebred. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Trincas Combine Beautiful Cows, Lovely Setting To Show Source Of Milk To Consumers

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

REBERSBURG (Centre Co.) — When you walk into Richard and Judy Trinca's registered Holstein dairy barn, you can easily see why this has been the top-producing herd in the county for the past two years. The cows are big and strong with dairy character and fancy udders. And several excellent, and a lot of very good, classified cows are stabled in the long tie-stall barn, too.

Milk production averages over 25,000 lbs., and the BAA classification score is 104.3. In the June issue of Profiles "Trincas' Trio" advertisement includes three excellent cows all with over 1,032f, and records that average 30,000m. Trincas Tempo Tulip peaked at 158 lbs. for the second year and was still milking 140 lbs. seven months later. Needless to say, Tulip is projected to reach nearly 40,000 lbs. of milk and 1,200f by the end of this lactation.

Richard and Judy both grew up on dairy farms and remember when rotational grazing was the recommended way to feed cows. "We went through that 40 years ago," Judy said. "We had three or four pastures and rotated the cows every few days. Now they are back to recommending this again with some new innovations."

"For us, we have the equipment and need to store feed for the winter," Richard added. "So we haven't gone back to rotational grazing at this time. We did switch to TMR several years ago, but we didn't see as much increase in milk production as some people said we would get. We were feeding very well before we changed so I guss that is why it didn't make as much difference for us. TMR did allow us to use more silage, so our work load baling hay was reduced."

Richard's father was a "better than average" dairyman in New Jersey and milked 100 cows. This was considered a very large herd at the time. But the farm was sold, and Richard began life as a dairy farmer by renting local farms around his home.

In 1973 the Trincas had the opportunity to buy this farm in Centre Co., Pennsylvania, and have since bought some additional acres as they bcame available. The soil is limestone with some sandstone mixed in.

"We can grow good alfalfa here, and our corn yields are from 150 to 180 bu.," Richard said. "I kinda like to farm. But sometimes I have second thoughts. My brothers are builders in New Jersey, and they take long vacations.

"I must say, we have taken vacations, too, when we had extra hired help. But it takes both our herdsman, Darl Johnstonbaugh, and I to

1994 Pennsylvania Dairies Of Distinction Listed

KINGSTOWN (LUZERN CO.) — The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program announced Pennsylvania winners of the 1994 Dairy of Distinction award this week. Thirty-three farms in Pennsylvania have been selected as new recipients of this honored award.

The Dairy of Distinction program has been operating in Pennsylvania since 1986. Including this year's winners, a total of 555 Pennsylvania dairy farms have been recognized through this program.

The program was established in New York State in 1983, and has since spread to Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The program was developed to recognize farms which maintain a high quality farm appearance.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. The winning farms receive attractive 18x24-inch signs which are placed on the roadside. In addition, Lancaster Farming gives each winner an 11x14 photograph of the farm.

Winning entries are judged annually to insure that they continue to meet the standards of

RALPH A. AND REBA CHAMBERLAIN AND SONS

Recently, the Chamberlain Dairy of Distinction Farm installed a 50-capacity, 44-foot by 180-foot freestall barn. Plans in the future may include a milking parlor, according to Ralph Chamberlain, an operator with the Ralph A. and Reba Chamberlain and Sons Farm in Clearville, Bedford County. The farm operates a 346-acre (tillable) farm, milking mostly grade Holsteins (72), Guernseys (3), Ayshires (4), Jerseys (11), with about 168 replacement and bull stock. The farm, more than 100 years old, has been in the family since about 1959. Ralph and Reba farm with sons Lynn, 37 and Barry, 30, together with Lynn's sons Brandon, 16 and Derrick, 12.

cover the work here right now. So we are tied down. But during crop time we wouldn't go anyway.

I'm still looking for the secret to farming. It's a lot of work. Not every crop or cow turns out the way you plan. We try to keep the cows comfortable with extra bedding and good ventilation. We try to breed better cows, and we are consistent in our milking times.

Johnstonbaugh agrees. "Herd health is our major concern," he said. "A healthy animal is a working animal. They take dairy care. We watch feed rations several times a week and spend a lot of time in heat detection. We have pregnancy checks every two weeks. But generally you must know your cows."

The Trincas farm 260 acres and raise soybeans, corn, and alfalfa. The soybeans are roasted on the farm, and little or no protein is bought. They sell hay and corn on the side.

As you travel along Route 192 east of Rebersburg, you will notice the well-manicured lawn and the clean-looking white farm buildings. And when you do, you will see why this is one of the new 1994 Dairy of Distinction farms in Pennsylvania. It's certainly a good representative example to consumers of "where milk comes from."

BEDFORD

PAUL D. AND KAREN TURNER

Recently, Paulden Farm in New Enterprise, Bedford County, installed a circular 10 foot by 70-foot concrete manure pit with the help of the local conservation district and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation. Paulden Farm farms about 210 acres (190 tillable) and milks about 84 head of registered Holsteins. The farm maintains about 60 head of replacement stock. They milk from a double-4 herringbone parlor, and DHIA averages are 21,600 pounds milk, 650 pounds protein, and 725 pounds fat. They've used a TMR mixer for quite a few years. Twenty-six years ago, Paul's father purchased the dairy, and Paul took over the operation about 10 years ago. He farms with wife Karen and children Stephanie, 19; Megan, 15; and Kimberly, 10, with help from hired labor, including Keith Brown, full-time and Doug Kennedy, part-time.

MARK E. AND RAYMOND R. YODER

Mid-Vel Farms, operated by Mark E. and Raymond R. Yoder, manages about 210 tillable acres in Imler, Bedford County. They milk 55 head of registered Holsteins from a tiestall to pipeline. The Yoders maintain another 60 head replacement stock. Latest DHIA averages are 21,000 pounds milk, 670 pounds protein, and 750 pounds fat. The farm has been in the family about 12 years, and has always been a dairy. Mark Yoder said the operation may someday install a dry cow barn. Present plans call for a small increase in herd size. Mark farms with wife Lois and son Jonathan, 18 mos., and Mark's parents, Raymond and Sara Yoder. Sam Fickes is the full-time herdsman.

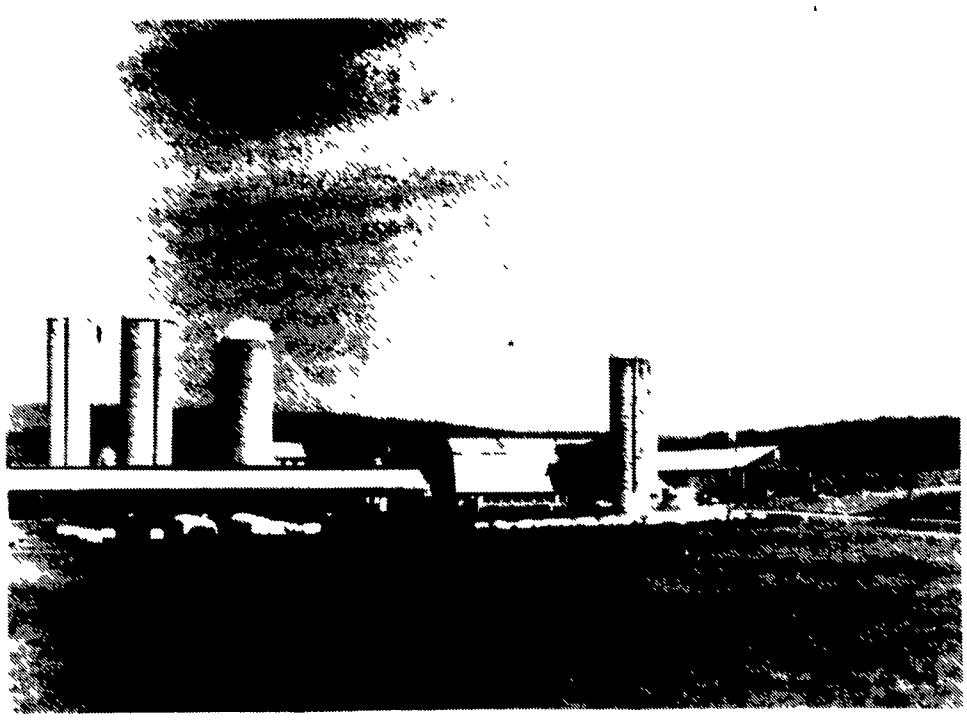
BLAIR



RANDY AND KARREN HUNTSMAN

PA. Fair-Valley Farm in Blair County near Martinsburg is not only a Dairy of Distinction farm, but Randy and Karen Huntsman have also received the Clean Water Award from the Chesapeake Bay program. They milk 105 Holsteins in a stantion barn and keep the cows in free stalls. Herd average is 21,400lbs. Randy's father Brian bought the farm 48 years ago, and the younger Huntsmans bought it from him this year. They farm 255 acres of corn, alfalfa and beans to feed the cows. Brian and a cousin Dwight Heeter also work on the farm.

BRADFORD

HENRY AND DOROTHY ABRA

This Bradford County Dairy of Distinction is the home of Henry and Dorothy Abra. Dorthy says they were chicken farmers in New Jersey prior to their move here in 1981. But they have done well with their registered and grade Holstein herd of 52 milk cows and 50 head of young stock. The herd average is 22,678m, and they milk in a tie-stall barn. Their son Shawn graduated from Penn State and provides good help in business management on the farm. A modified rotational grazing program is used with cows kept in the barn during the day and pastured in several different lots at night from May to October. The Abras believe they get more feed into the cows during the day by using this method. Calves go immediately into hutches and at three months are put into an open-front heifer barn where they progress through the pens until freshening at two years.

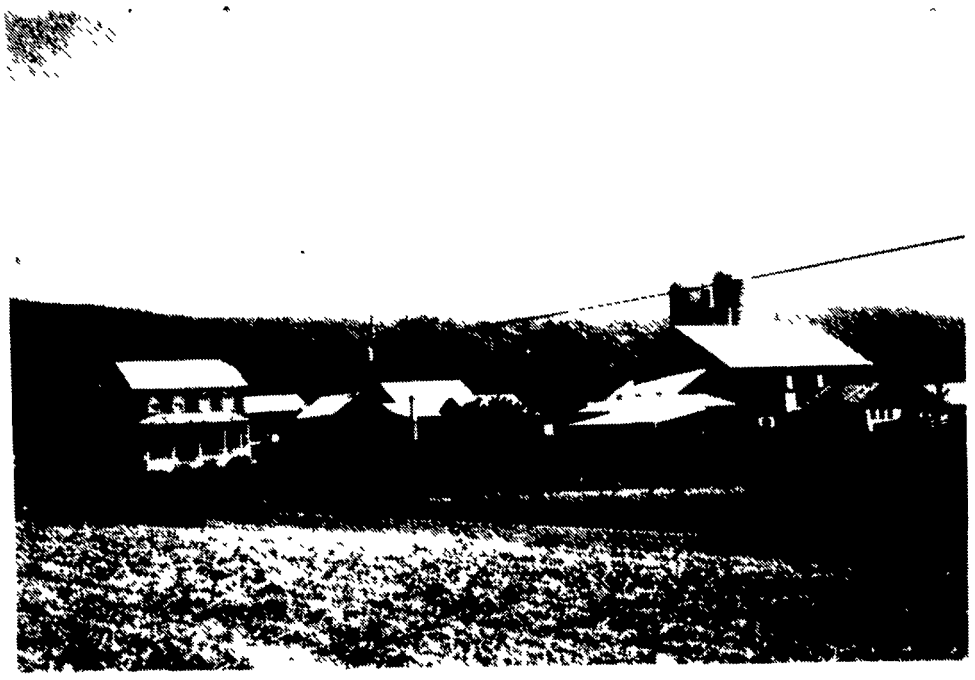
CRAWFORD

RICHARD C. PAYNE

Richard Payne farms 300 acres where he grew up. This new Dairy of Distinction is located near Crossingville just off Route 98 in Crawford County. He milks 40 Holstein cows that average between 55 and 60 lbs. of milk per day throughout the year. The farm has been in the family 50 years, and Payne believes management is the key to a successful operation. He grows corn and beans for the cows but also sells a lot of grain each year. He also grows alfalfa.

CUMBERLAND



GLENN AND BERNICE MYERS

At Glenbern Holstein Farm, located near Newburg in Cumberland County, Glenn and Bernice Myers and their son William, milk 60 cows and have about that number of additional replacement young stock. The DHIA rolling herd average ranges from 20,000lbs. to 22,000lbs. Glenn's father bought the farm in 1953, two years after Glenn graduated from high school and won the state tractor driving contest. Hopewell Twp. has a paper recycling program, and Glenbern has become the community outlet for this recycled paper. Once each month, a farm truck is placed at the township office for urban residents to deposit newspapers and magazines. Glenn says the paper is used to bed the heifers and works very well, especially in the hot weather.

CHARLES AND DIANA FARLEY

The Farley family, Charles and Diana and son Jeff, farm 300 acres south of McKeen in Erie County. Their herd of 60 Holsteins average 20,000 lbs. of milk, and they have a total of 125 head, including young stock. They milk in a tie-stall barn. The farm has been in the family 21 years. The Farleys say it takes good management to keep a dairy farm going, especially with the drop in milk prices. And it takes dedication.

HUNTINGDON

TERRY AND DENISE HAWN

Hawn Hollow Dairy of Distinction Farm operated by Terry and Denise Hawn, Huntingdon, uses a flat barn, California-type parlor, milking about 49 registered and grade Holsteins. The farm has about 35 replacement stock. The latest herd averages on DHIA are 23,040 pounds milk, 724 pounds protein, and about 900 fat. Terry farms with his wife, Denise, and children, Andy, 13; Terry Jr., 8; and Wendy, 6. Also, Terry's father, Alfred and mother, Betty live on the farm, where they help out.

HUNTINGDON

CARL C. AND CAROL BARNETT

Looking toward major fertilizer cost savings, Carl Barnett recently finished a circular manure storage pit measuring 12 feet by 75 feet, from which he will draw the slurry to inject directly into his farm ground (about 350 tillable). The Barnett Dairy Farm, Todd, Huntingdon County, milks about 75 registered and grade Holsteins and maintains about 75 replacement heifers. Other recent additions include a 142-foot heifer barn with slatted floors. DHIA averages are 20,237 pounds of milk, 728 pounds of fat, and 653 pounds of protein. Of the 350 acres of tillable ground, Barnett grows 180 acres of corn, 135 acres of hay, and 35 acres of oats. Carl farms with wife Carol and daughter Christine and her husband Ray. James Garner is the herd manager.

SAMUEL E. AND HAZEL S. YODER

The Mapleton Depot location of Colonial Farm Estate, operated by Samuel E. and Hazel S. Yoder, harbors about 350 tillable acres, including rented land. The business milks about 95 of registered and grade Holsteins, with about 70 replacement stock. DHIA averages are about 22,500 pounds milk, 720 pounds fat, and 718 pounds protein. Samuel owns the cows and equipment and rents the farm from Fred Parks. Samuel farms with wife Hazel and children Emily, 3; Aremina, 2; and Veronica, 7 mos. Also, Matt Parks, 19, works on the farm full-time. Samuel said he recently installed a larger tank at about 2,000 pounds capacity.

HUNTINGDON

TIM AND MARLENE PEACHEY

Laurel Run Farms, operated by Tim and Marlene Peachey, Petersburg, Huntingdon County, milks about 95 registered Holsteins from tiestall to pipeline. Current DHIA averages are about 21,500 pounds of milk, 705 pounds protein, and 788 pounds fat. Tim's father, Glenn, purchased the farm in the 1950s, and Tim purchased the farm in fall 1992. Tim farms the 250 acres of the home farm, and rents another farm adjacent. Included in the operation is wife Marlene and children Carrie, 8; Tyler, 7; and Rebecca, 4.

WILLARD J. YODER, JR.

At Heron-Run Farm, operated by Willard J. Yoder and family, Huntingdon, plans include equipment updates to their double-6 milking parlor, including takeoffs and indexing, according to Willard. A few years ago, the farm installed a TMR mixer for the herd, which includes 155 registered Holsteins and 150 young stock. Latest DHIA averages are 20,000 pounds of milk, 640 pounds protein, and about 747 pounds fat. Willard's grandfather purchased the farm in the mid-1940s, and Willard said they are in the process of buying it. Willard farms the 450 acres (tillable) farm with wife Betsy and children Nicole, 6; Janelle, 5; and Joshua, 2, along with Willard's brother, Joe.

JAMES AND PAM BERRY

James and Pam Berry and their two sons Jamie, 8, and Phillip, 6, moved from Lebanon County to Jefferson County in February of this year. After renting a dairy farm for 11 years, they always wanted a place of their own and they wanted it to be attractvie. That's why they applied for the Dairy of Distinction award and are pleased they received it. The farm, located south of Brookville, consists of about 200 acres. They have 64 Holsteins and have just started on DHIA test. The boys like to help look forward to when they get older so they can do more around the farm.

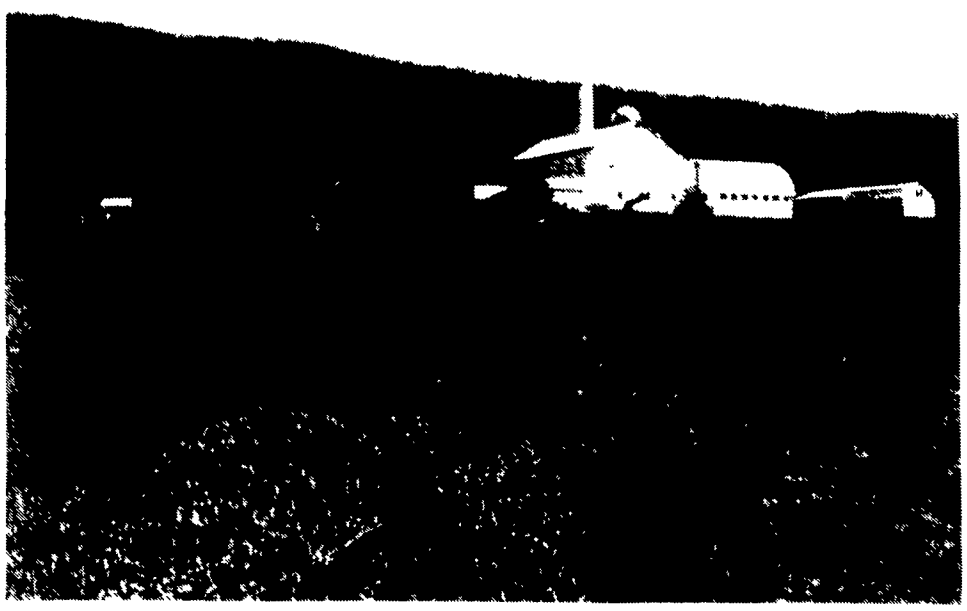
JUNIATA



HAROLD AND JANET SHEARER

Harold and Janet Shearer's family has been farming this Dairy of Distinction since 1939 when Harold's father bought the farm. In April of this year, Donna and Jason Wadle took over the farm and have been doing very well with Registered Holstein cows that average 20,000m 700f 630p. But right now it's disappointingly dry. They have 475 acres with 25 in pasture and more acres that could be adapted to the new push to rotational graze the cows. They believe it takes diligent work and the ability to make things happen. Harold said when he was younger, farming was fun, but lately it has become more of a drag, so he is pleased that a young couple have taken over the dairy herd.

RON AND DESI MUMAH

Mu-Ke Holsteins have a new Dairy of Distinction home. Located one mile south of Port Royal in Juniata County, Ron and Desi Mummah and their daughters Danielle, 15, and Ronda, 13, farm 252 acres and milk 65 Registered Holsteins and have an additional 65 head of young stock. Milk production average is 21,000 lbs. The farm has been in the family 10 years. They milk in a tie-stall barn and raise corn, alfalfa, and a few oats. They believe the most important management practice is to keep the cows cool. The cows are out in the mornings and at night but kept in the barn during the day.

DAVID AND SHAWN WENGER

This 54-acre Manheim farm rented by David and Shawn Wenger has been well kept by its owners, and the Wengers like it that way. In their sixth year renting, they have found, as have many, that the attractiveness of a farm can help with attitude when doing the otherwise mundane or more nasty chores. In what David called "a well functioning" old tie-stall barn, the couple milk 44 cows, keep 50 including dry cows, with about three-fourths of the herd registered. They also keep about 60 heifers and sell the bulk of the bull calves at auction, keeping some of the better registered bulls for neighbors who like to use live bulls for cleanup or all insemenation needs. The couple have two two childen, Kyle, 3, Katrina, 9 months, which keeps them busy. The dairy farm is David's first, having grown up on his father Raymond Wenger's beef farm near Lititz. Dave got his practical experience doing dairying work at another dairy farm for more than a year. And if the Wengers get the opportunity, the young couple said they would be interested in buying their own place. Where they are, they have a 20-foot by 27-foot Harvestore for high moisture shell corn, and a 20-foot by 60-foot stave silo for corn silage. In addition, he said he usually makes three or four ag bags to store his farm-raised forages. He has to buy most of the shell corn, but is able to raise hay and silage corn and double crop that with rye for rylage.

DAVE AND JOE GARBER

Spring Lawn Farms, near Lancaster, is a safety conscious farm, in addition to being an attractive representative of the dairy production industry. The 128-acre Century farm had been run by a three-way partnership of brothers since 1980: Dave, Joe and Fred Garber, until Fred's death in 1990, a year after he received the national award for farm safety. Joe said Fred "was very active in farm safety and worked at trying to teach children," and he said that, at the farm, they continue to keep such practices a high priority, such as making sure the pesticide storage area is always locked. The beauty of the farm is a reflection of the people and the Garber farm got a good start in combining esthetics with functionality when grandfather Clarence Garber became one of the first in Lancaster County to put in terracing and a conservation plan, following the lead of a cousin in Quarryville who first put terraces on his farm. Located along Stony Lane, the pond is sited at the bottom of a hill and has a small pond. A farm lane that run about two-tenths of a mile is edged in mowed grass and leads to the freestall barn and a double-5, automatic take-off, milking parlor, where the families and a hired family milk 145 registered Holsteins on test, and keep about 100 young stock. The house was built in the early 1700s and a huge Gingko tree sits behind it. Grass is cut and the weeds kept down along the buildings and off the hardtop areas. A fair amount of landscaping also adds to the general visual appeal. There are five silos — a 20- by 72-foot, two 20- by 70-footers, an 18- by 84-foot structure, and a 20-foot by 40-foot Harvestor for high moisture corn. In addition the farm has two silo-type structures for manure storage. The Garbers feed a TMR, mostly haylage, corn silage, and double-cropped rylage. A few square bales are also made. The herd averages about 20,700 pounds of milk, 770 pounds of fat and 670 pounds of protein. On the farm are Joe's wife Yvonne and their children Josiah, 7, Charise, 4, and Kristen, 1; Dave and wife Shirley and their children Jennifer, 7, and Kendall, 4; and the hired couple, Mark and Tammy Dietrick, and their children Jamie Lee, 11, Marco, 8, and Lacy, 6. The brother's parents are Jay C. Garber and Lois Garber.

PROCLAMATION

DAIRY OF DISTINCTION WEEK
August 14 - 20, 1994

Pennsylvania's dairy farmers have achieved national recognition for their efforts, which now put the Commonwealth fourth in the nation in milk production. In addition, the dairy industry makes up more than one-third of Pennsylvania's leading economic sector.

The Dairy of Distinction Program was developed as a tribute to the hard work of our dairy farmers. A team of judges works to select the most attractive dairy farms in Pennsylvania, rating them for neatness, maintenance, and roadside appearance. Five-hundred-fifty-five farms have won Dairy of Distinction honors since the program was started in 1986.

In recognition of the dedication and commitment of our dairy farmers, I, Robert P. Casey, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby proclaim August 14 - 20, 1994, as DAIRY OF DISTINCTION WEEK in Pennsylvania. I encourage all Pennsylvania citizens to support the state's dairy industry by enjoying our wholesome dairy products throughout the year, and to recognize the contributions made by Pennsylvania dairy farmers to our economy and our quality of life.

GIVEN under my hand and the Seal of the Governor, at the City of Harrisburg, this thirteenth day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-four, and of the Commonwealth the two hundred and nineteenth.

METATRON CONTROL

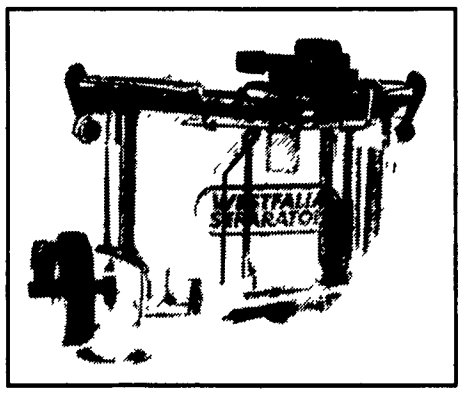
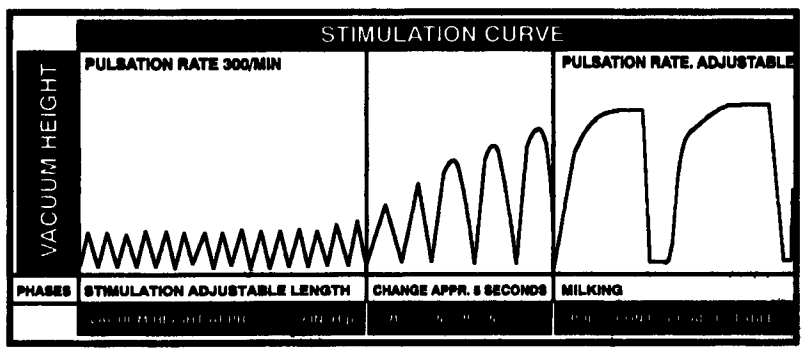
METATRON MILK METER

Simple diaphragm operation. DHIA approved.





The Steve and Ruth Nunes Dairy milks 400 Holsteins in Fallon Nevada. In 1990, the Nunes dairy installed eight Westfailia Metatron milk meters and Stimopuls pulsators in their side opener parlor. Since then, total maintenance cost for both the Metatron milk meters and Stimopuls pulsators has been $214.54.

Steve's repairs have been to replace any worn rubber goods on the Metatron and Stimopuls. "Any time I replaced a gasket or diaphragm in the milk meter or pulsator, I could easily do it myself without needing a serviceman," Steve says. The parts that do wear out are not expensive. "I have never had a board or major part fail on my Westfalia milk meters or Stimopuls. As far as that goes, I have used Westfailia electronic takeoffs for over 15 years and have never had a circuit board fail."

Steve's milking experience with Westfalia Metatrons and Stimopuls pulsators have been beneficial to his operation. All cows are properly and consistently pre-milking stimulated by the Stimopuls before milking pulsation begins. Cow milk out is rapid and complete. SCC is less than 100,000. Daily milk records are automatically entered into Westfalia Dairyplan herd management software for daily management activities.

Westfalia Metatron milk meters and Stimopuls pulsation are installed by Liberty Engineering of Fallon, Nevada.

For proven reliability, simplicity, and milking benefits, nothing compares to Westfalia Metatron milk meters and Stimopuls pulsation.

Len-Lyn Holsteins, based in Stevens, Lancaster County, maintains about 150 tillable acres and milks 65 registered Holsteins from tiestall to pipeline. Philip Crouse maintains another 75 young stock. DHIA averages are 20,300 pounds milk, 645 pounds protein, and 718 pounds fat. Philip said that the farm is a fourth generation farm, which has always been a dairy. Philip's parents, Galen and Carolyn, help on the farm, in addition to Philip's wife Gail and two children, Lane, 8 and Adriane, 5. Philip said that although he recently scaled down the herd size, he is looking to expand the herd in the future.

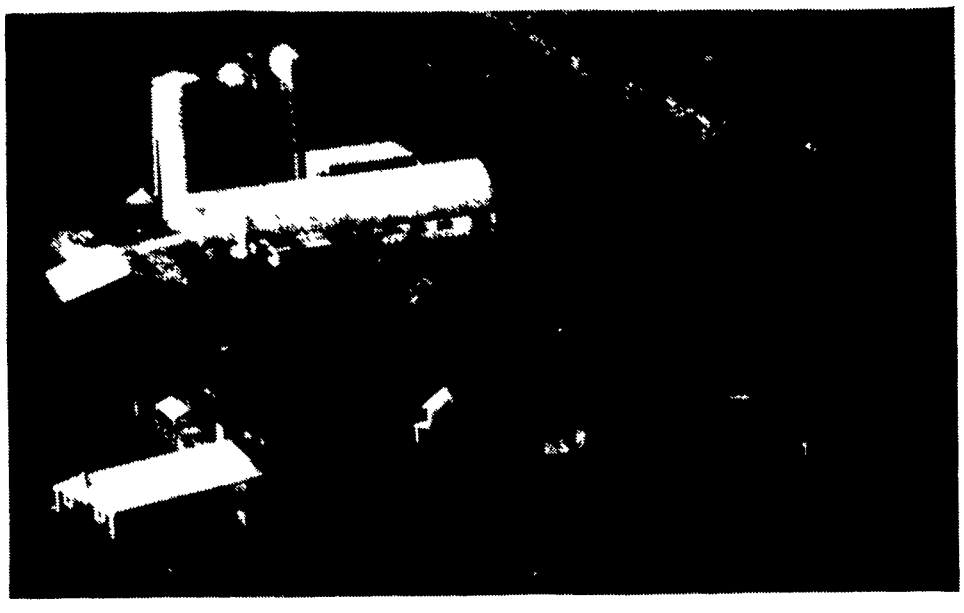
SAMUEL AND MIRIAN LONG



Milk-A-Long Farms, owned by Samuel F. and Miriam Long, was not previously held by a member of either's family before the couple bought the 144-acre Peach Bottom farm 21 years ago. But the two, who were both widowed and remarried when 31 years old, also 21 years ago, have kept the 57-stall quonset hut-shaped barn painted red with white trim, as well as an old corn barn, and they keep some landscaping to highlight the farm's natural beauty. Though a public road cuts between the house and the barn, the paint of the buildings give a vibrant character and makes for an attractive contrast to the greens and browns of a rail fence and row of pine trees at the heifer pen. In addition, a towering, thick, horse-chestnut tree, 15-feet in diameter, is a perfect companion to the farm's stone house, built in the 1700s. Sam and Miriam work the farm themselves, milking 44 mixed breed cows. The cows are, literally, mixed breed: with some registered Holsteins, but also some Jersey-Holstein cows, Milking Shorthorn-Holstein cows, and a couple of Brown Swiss-Holstein cows. Samuel says he likes to keep a few of the cross-breeds to give the herd color. Besides, the production isn't bad at all, averaging about 19,000 pounds of milk. The overall herd average for 1993 was 20,315 pounds of milk, 717 pounds fat and 627 pounds protein. Samuel said he really likes a Jersey-Holstein cross and has one that only weighs between 800 and 900 pounds but made 17,000 pounds of milk. He also has another Jersey-Holstein, a little all black cow, that has, to date, made a lifetime record of 118,000 pounds of milk. They raise their own replacements and sell the bull calves at auction. The crops are corn, alfalfa and orchard grass and they are in the third year of feeding a TMR. The Longs have six children, all married with one child living at home.

RAY AND REBA RANCK

Before "B&B" became widely recognized as a short term for "bed and breakfast," J. Ray and Reba Ranch were hosting guests at their large, red brick farmhouse that J. Ray's great grandfather built in 1863. The Paradise location was ideal for such a venture because of the heavy tourist trade of the Amish-curious and those seeking the serenity of backroad production agriculture and its crafts, food, and the amiable nature of many of the people. Many things have changed since the couple started taking in tourists in 1971. Today, they average 1,400 guests per year to the dairy farm with its big white farm barn. The attractive farming site has a large lawn, big shade maples around the house, a gazebo, lots of flower beds, landscaping, and a guest house. The farmhouse itself has 19 rooms with six bedrooms for tourists. It is a working farm and they milk about 60 Holstein cows, registered and grade, that averaged in June 22,715 pounds of milk, 811 pounds of fat and 733 pounds of protein. The oldest of the couple's three children, Rob, works at the home farm full time. They have a daugther Rhonda who is a teacher at Locust Grove Mennonite School, and a son Ryan, who just finished college, was just married and who works as a broiler supervisor in the poultry division of Pennfield Corporation. J. Ray has lived on the farm his entire life and has farmed its 100 acres since 1962. He rents an additional 40 acres.

LEBANON

GEORGE AND MARY TROUTMAN

The 200-acre farm of George and Mary Troutman is located near Myerstown in Lebanon County. They have registered Holstein cows, 94 in milk and about that many more young stock. The herd average is 21,107m. The farm has been in the family at least three generations, and the Troutmans believe it's important to keep efficient and work together. They give credit to their hired help, Dan and Norma Bausher, for a job well-done with the cows.

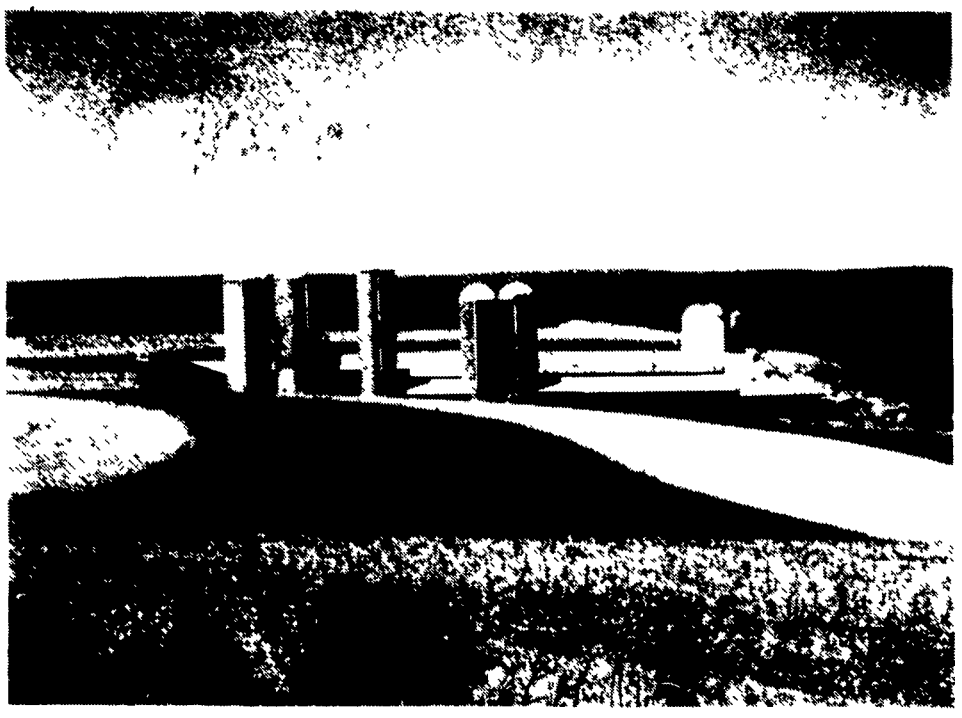
NORTHAMPTON

NORMAN AND AUDREY KOEHLER

Koehler Farms, located near Bangor in Northampton, has been in the family since 1860. Norman and Audrey Koehler and their four children, Jason, 18, Jennifer, 15, Eric, 13, and Ryan, 12, farm 150 acres. They have 80 registered and grade Holsteins with a herd average over 16,000 lbs. They milk in a stantion barn. The Koehlers believe the production of quality milk is the most important emphasis for management.



GREGGO FARMS, INC.

It's a real family affair at Greggo Farms, located south of Pen Argyl. Brothers Frank, Joe, Vince, and nephew Joseph are all involved. Oh, yes, and father Joe, Sr., who is 75 years young still milks cows too. This family farms 500 acres in Northampton County, and they milk 400 Holsteins that average over 20,000 lbs. They contract their heifer calves out to be raised by neighbors who keep the calves until they are ready to come into the milking herd. This arrangement has worked well and eliminates heifer care on the milking farm. They milk in a double 10. They do everything around the farm from field work and machinery repairs to milking and herd care. You need to be able to do everything around the farm to be successful. And it takes a lot of cooperation.

NORTHUMBERLAND

DALE AND KIM GROFF

At Swaying Maple Farm in southern Northumberland County, Dale and Kim Groff and their three sons, Ryan, 20, Kyle, 16, and Joel, 13, farm 200 acres. They have Registered Holsteins and milk 55 cows that average 18,500 lbs. of milk. The Groffs moved from Lancaster County 11 years ago. Dale believes you need to promote your dairy products and sees the Dairy of Distinction program as a way to do that. He is involved with the county nutrient management committee and believes in farm management that pays attention to the details.

PERRY

LESTER AND HAZEL FLEISHER

Buff-Del Farms located west of Newport in Perry County has been in the Fleisher family for nearly 100 years. Today, Lester and Hazel and son Brian and his wife Amy farm 215 acres and milk 52 Registered Holsteins and ID grades that average 20,500m. Brian said the most important management practice is to pay attention to details. You can't just take care of the cows or just the field work. You must take care of everything.

AUTOFLOW™ MILKING STALLS

With Non-Stop Cow Traffic

Using less stalls at maximum efficiency lowers the total cost of your automation and improves labor efficiency. Comparison shows it takes as much as 50% fewer AutoFlow stalls to achieve the same throughput as with similarly automated herringbone and parallel systems.
As milking equipment becomes more sophisticated and more expensive, the investment per stall becomes an important factor. The Surge AutoFlow parlor maximizes efficiencies per stall without sacrificing cow throughput.

SNYDER

LEE AND SANDRA SHAFFER

The Homestead farm of Lee and Sandra Shaffer has been in the family since 1868. They farm 700 acres and milk 140 Holstein cows that average over 17,000 lbs. of milk and 700 lbs. of butterfat. And Lee has several Brown Swiss cows as pets. In addition, they raise all the young stock, including the bulls. Since the farm is located in a developing area near Selingsgrove, they try to be good neighbors with the urban community by plowing in the manure as soon as it is applied. Good hired help is essential on the farm, and office work continues to increase with government regulations.

SOMERSET

NEVIN AND DOLORES MITCHELL

Nevin and Dolores Mitchell started on this new Dairy of Distinction 29 years ago. Located near Berlin in Somerset County, it is known as Crossroads Farm. With their son Jamie, they milk 50 Holsteins and have 30 young stock they are raising as replacements. The herd average is 20,380lbs. They have a stantion barn with pipeline milkers.

ARTHUR H. AND KELLY L. WOLFE

Arthur and Kelly Wolfe, who operate Plumside Dairy in Springville, Susquehanna County, purchased the dairy animals from farm owner Michael Gleimboski in 1992. They rent the barn and house and purchase all the feed for the herd, which includes 60 Holsteins, five Brown Swiss, and five Milking Shorthorn. About 70 percent of the dairy herd is registered. Arthur and Kelly operate the dairy with help from daughters Alisha, 10 and Melissa, 9.

JAMES ROGERS AND SONS

The Rogers, James and sons Jimmy and Danny, farm 102 acres in Susquehanna County near Springville. They milk 54 Holsteins and have a herd average over 20,000 lbs. They believe you always need a good man in the barn. He can't do his job if you don't have a good man in the fields. So each person on the farm has his responsibilities. The farm has been in the family since 1933.

LOUIS AND NATALIE HAWLEY

Louis and Natalie Hawley and their three teenage sons, Ben, Mike, and Nick, have put together several farms to make this Dairy of Distinction. In addition, they rent land all around them to provide feed for a mixed herd of Jerseys and Holsteins. Recently they have also bought several Dutch belted animals that attract attention as people pass by their farm. They live one-fourth mile from the boro line of Montrose in an ag security area. The farm has been in the family since 1950.

Plan To Enter The Next Dairy Of Distinction Program

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is prepared to receive applications for the 1995 awards. This program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has been well-received, and officers look forward to an excellent program again next year.

"There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in the past years without success should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairy farmers. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent to him any time after January 1, 1994. Deadline for applications is April 15. Judging is completed in May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The states are divided into districts, and a local committee oversees the program in each district.

A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farming to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

This beautiful Dairy of Distinction was named in 1994 and is owned by Glenn and Bernice Myers at Newburg. Farms that look attractive help to make a good impression for consumers who buy dairy products.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time you and your farm received some recognition for your hard work. The coveted Dairy of Distinction award will give you that recognition. In addition, your attractive farm will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsyvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Carol Weddle, New York, Holstein Assn., 957 Mitchell St., Box 190, Ithaca, N.Y. 14851. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, N.J. 08867.

In Pennsylvania, you may contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingstown, PA 18704.

In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

Want to increase production, butterfat and profits?

Here's what farmers are saying about Fertrell's Rumi-cult 40, a bacterial aid fortified with electrolytes, vitamins, amino acids, and blood builders specially formulated for high producing cows under stress.

"Previous digestive problems are what prompted us to try Fertrell's Rumi-cult. The rumi-cult solved the problems! We then joined the Fertrell feeding program and have had no serious vet problems since. This program has been more profitable than any other we've been on."

"We starting using Fertrell's Rumi-Cult 40 in June of 1987 and have been very happy with the results. Their knowledge about nutrition has helped us immensely. I appreciate the honest straightforward approach to helping us increase and maintain our butterfat. We place a great deal of trust in the knowledge of their nutritionist Dave Mattocks.
